Capt. with British vanguards in the south—about 1,000 yards north of the town.

South of Caen, the British were established firmly at St. Andre-sur-Orne, four miles down the Orne river, but headquarters retracted a previous announcement that they had taken St. Martin de Pons, a few hundred yards further south.

A London broadcast said that "half of Troarn" still was in German hands, but the "fighting is going well for us."

HEARING PERIERS

On the western half of the front, the American 1st Army inched to within 4,000 yards north of Periers, made slight gains at several points south of Theperiers-St. Lo highway and won positions 1,500 yards west of the Vire River four miles north-west of St. Lo.

A headquarters spokesman acknowledged he also was in error in reporting the capture of Raids, four miles north of Periers on the highway from Carantan, and Berigny, on the St. Lo-Bayeux highway. Both still were in German hands, he said.

distance northwest of Brest-Litovsk, which was being shelled by Soviet artillery set up nine miles north of the city.

On the southern thrust of the two-pronged drive, Russian infantrymen stormed into Miedna, 15 miles south of Brest-Litovsk, leaving only a 30-mile gap open behind the city, and only one railroad escape route westward of Warsaw.

Farther south, another unit of Rokossovsky's army seized Wiek-Bukowa, 40 miles due east of Lublin and 65 miles from the Wisla (Vistula) river, the last natural barrier east of the German border.

SOUTHERN THRUST

While Rokossovsky's forces were driving at a pace that brought up to gains of 15 miles in one day, Marshal Ivan S. Konev's 1st Ukrainian Army extended the long eastern front another 50 miles southward in a new thrust of Stanislawow, on the gateway to the Carpathian mountains into Czechoslovakia.

The Ukrainian troops drove to within 60 miles of the Czech border to captured Zubzets, 35 miles east of Stanislawow, and Sokolov, 10 miles south of Bucacz.

Northward, Konev's forces were waging a heavy battle against three German infantry divisions and reserve tank units for the nine-point rail junction of Lwow. While the main thrusts were assaulting the approaches to Lwow, other units continued their drives around both sides of the city.

Beaverbrook in U.S. For Oil Conference

WASHINGTON, July 22—(AP)—Lord Beaverbrook, Lord privy seal, arrived in Washington yesterday with the British delegation for an Anglo-American conference to conclude a final agreement on international oil policy. Richard Law, minister of state, a member of the delegation, headed by Lord Beaverbrook, has been here for about a week. The talks are expected to begin Tuesday. The American group is headed by State Secretary Hull and includes Harold Ickes, secretary of the interior.

OTTAWA, July 22—(CP)—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics said yesterday the estimated total number of wage-earners employed in industries covered by its monthly survey of employment as of last Oct. 1 was 2,379,635, of whom 1,713,885 were men and 665,750 were women.

Senator Truman Running Mate For Roosevelt

Truman's selection unanimous. But it was ruled as out of order at that time.

Truman is the 60-year-old chairman of the senate war investigating committee.

Although Wallace's name spelled political poison to many Dixie Democrats, the former secretary of agriculture commanded powerful support from some elements of labor, among them the C.I.O. political action committee.

Its chairman, Sidney Hillman, promised the Roosevelt-Truman team "our complete and wholehearted support."

Last night, for a second time in four years, Democrats tossed a vice-presidential onto the political scrap heap and picked a newcomer.

GARNER DROPPED

Four years ago, it was John Nance Garner who was dropped at the instigation of the president. This year, the president had said he would vote personally for Wallace if he were a convention delegate, but that he likewise thought Truman—or Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas—would add real strength to the ticket that would oppose the Republicans.

Thomas A. Dewey and John W. Bricker.

Democrats took the weak White House endorsement of Wallace as their cue. National chairman Robert E. Hannegan, himself a Missourian, was credited by convention delegates with engineering the Truman victory.

Even James A. Farley, who managed Mr. Roosevelt's first two campaigns but refused to go along for the third trip, said he was going to back to convention nominees.

His wife said a week ago that she would vote Republican if Mr. Roosevelt were renominated.

Tally clerks, swamped under an avalanche of state switches, figured the vote was something like 1,100 for Truman, 66 for Wallace. But there just wasn't any accurate count available. The victory was just standing as the one Mr. Roosevelt tucked away Thursday night on one ballot.

Hospital Receives Penicillin Quota

Penicillin amounting to 3,000,000 units has been received by the Royal Alexandra hospital through the department of the controller of chemicals, Ottawa, L. A. Brown, a hospital pharmacist, announced Saturday. The hospital applied for the drug following notification from the department that each Canadian hospital would be given a quota of the drug upon application.

Public hospitals of more than 25 beds may buy up to 6,000,000 units of the drug in July. Use of the drug is restricted to certain infectious diseases specified by the controller. About 120,000 units of penicillin are needed to treat one patient.

At the end of the month, each hospital must report to the controller, the way in which the drug has been used, the type of diseases, number of patients treated, and effect of the treatments.

The drug has been made available to Canadian hospitals through the War Production Board at Washington. All of Canada's production of penicillin is required for military use.

German Navy Units Reported in Revolt

language station which long has carried on an anti-Nazi propaganda campaign and the location and connections of which never have been disclosed.

Despite the run of sensational reports of uprisings reaching London, Hitler appeared to be maintaining firm control of German radio stations, news agencies, newspapers and other key points whose occupation would be necessary for any successful revolt.

Hitler asserted in an order of the day to German troops today that an attempted coup d'etat by "a small circle of unscrupulous officers" had been crushed, and expressed confidence the army "will fight with exemplary obedience and loyalty until victory is ours in spite of all."

"By immediate and vigorous action by loyal officers and men of the army at home, the traitor clique was wiped out or arrested in the matter of a few hours," Hitler said.

"PROVIDENCE" HELPS

"A small circle of unscrupulous officers had made an attempt to murder me and the general staff and to seize power in state," but "PROVIDENCE" caused the attempt to miscarry."

His order was seen as an obvious attempt to reassure his own followers in army ranks and to discourage any further revolt.

Responsible sources in London suggested that many stories were being spread purposely from non-German sources in order to increase the confusion presently existing in Germany and to undermine morale on the German home and fighting fronts.

A self-styled "free German" radio station in Moscow broadcast a statement from German Maj. Gen. Hans Van Wartenberg asserting that leaders of the "liberation movement" still were alive and in hiding.

CONTINUE STRUGGLE

"They have a great following in all strata of the German people and are continuing to find ways and means to continue the struggle," the statement said.

Other unconfirmed reports reaching London from European sources said that army units in East Prussia had rebelled and been shot, that heavy fighting was going on in Bavaria and even that Adolf Hitler had been arrested or put under protective custody.

There appeared no doubt, however, that Heinrich Himmler, empowered by Hitler to restore order at all cost, was pressing ahead with his purge of anti-Nazi elements with a fury unparalleled even in the 1934 massacre.

The Germans themselves admitted that Hitler was determined this time to wipe out not only those involved in the incipient revolt and attempt on his life, but also all elements regarded as potential sources of opposition.

ATTACKS NOBILITY

Dr. Robert Ley, Hitler's red-faced, bull-necked labor front leader, lashed out repeatedly at "blue-blooded swine" in a speech over Berlin radio that bordered constantly on hysteria.

Addressing the arms workers, Ley charged that "Moscow Jews gave the order for the heaviest calibre mine to be imported from England" and it was planted beside Hitler by German counts and aristocrats.

"These creatures must be annihilated," he said. "Every single German must know that if he betrays Germany, his blood will be drained."

The German Transocean agency said the first photograph of Hitler taken after the unsuccessful attempt on his life Thursday was published in morning newspapers in Germany today.

"Hitler looks fresh and healthy and shows no signs of the slight burns he received," Transocean said.

ARREST 34 GENERALS

A United Press dispatch from Basel told of frontier reports that 34 generals were among those arrested by Himmler's raiding squads and asserted that many already had been executed. All regular army troops in Munich were reported to have been locked up in their barracks and disarmed, the dispatch said.

Col. Gen. Fritz Fromm, who was replaced by Himmler as commander of Germany's home army, was described by Swedish correspondents in Berlin as one of the ringleaders of the conspiracy. Reports circulated that Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch, former commander-in-chief of the German army, and Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, present chief of the army high command, also were involved, but Keitel was believed still retaining his post.

German broadcasts have identified only two of the generals implicated in the plot and both have been executed. They were Col. Gen. Ludwig Beck, former chief of the German general staff, and Count von Stauffenberg, 37, who planted the bomb which burned and bruised Hitler, killing one of his collaborators and wounding a dozen others.

RIGID CENSORSHIP

Rigid censorship prevented a full picture of events inside Germany, but continued Nazi control of radio stations, telephone exchanges, telegraph offices, newspapers and other key points indicated that Hitler and Himmler held the situation in hand, at least temporarily.

The official German DND agency acknowledged that the revolting clique seized temporary control Thursday of "certain news apparatus" and attempted to give orders to army posts of some and at the front, but said these orders were

Nazis "Beat It"

ON THE ORNE RIVER FRONT, July 22—(AP)—A British-maned Sherman tank tore around a corner in a shell-wrecked village and crashed head-on into a German Tiger tank.

"Both crews boiled out of their turrets," said Major M. P. Bell, British armored squadron leader. "In the confusion, both our men and the Germans had forgotten their small arms and there they stood a few feet apart just staring at each other."

The British tank commander spoke first: "Beat it, before I change my mind."

With a guttural "danke schoen" (thank you), the Germans took to their heels.

recognised immediately as "treason" and were not carried out.

When Hitler, Reichsmarschall Hermann Goering and Grand Admiral Karl Doenitz broadcast their orders to the German armed forces to stand fast Thursday night, they "had no details of how and how long the clique would avail themselves of the means of conveying news to their disposal."

The three leaders spoke so that their subsidiary commanders would recognize any false orders issued by the revolters, DNB said.

The German Transocean revealed that a battalion from the Gros Deutschland division had occupied the government district of Berlin Thursday afternoon to ensure order.

GUARD CHANCELLERY

The Berlin correspondent to the Stockholm newspaper Dagens Nyheter told of seeing squads of regular soldiers and SS troops speed in automobiles to Hitler's Reichschancellery and other government buildings Thursday night and post themselves on guard duty. Machine guns were set up and all traffic was halted in the government district, but the troops departed an hour and a half later when no incidents developed, the dispatch said.

Berlin was described by all sources as quiet, though resembling a city under siege with only 55 and Gestapo men visible in the streets.

Some disorders were reported from Eastern Germany and East Prussia, and travellers arriving in Sweden from Berlin said they had heard that "whole regiments" had been shot in East Prussia for attempted mutiny, while others were disarmed and sent away.

The German-controlled Scandinavian Telegraph Bureau said Hitler still was conferring with Benito Mussolini, head of the puppet Italian Fascist government, in the presence of Nazi Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop. A communiqué was expected when the conferences concludes, STB said.

"CHANGES" IN STAFF

The London News Chronicle said "important changes" had been made in the staff at Hitler's headquarters as result of the assassination attempt, with the commander of his personal bodyguard dismissed and ordered before an SS tribunal to answer charges of neglect of duty, and his quartermaster replaced by the SS man, Schroeder, who rescued Mussolini.

LEY LASHES OUT AT "IDIOTIC NOBILITY"

LONDON, July 22—(CP)—Dr. Robert Ley, Nazi labor chief, in an address today before several thousand armament workers at a factory somewhere in Germany, lashed out at "an idiotic nobility that has nothing better to do than plot against our Fuehrer."

In a speech broadcast directly from the scene the Nazi leader attacked Jews, plutocrats and foreigners as the instigators of the attempted assassination of Hitler, then added:

"While German workers labor 12 to 16 hours without a Sunday or holiday, an idiotic nobility has nothing better to do than plot against our Fuehrer."

Ley asserted that a "mine of the heaviest type imported from Britain" was used in the assassination attempt, but did not explain how the explosion of such a powerful device only a short distance from Hitler would result in but minor injuries.

"The fact he was saved does not mean the battle is won," shouted Ley.

He implored fate to "Give us battle—until we succumb to exhaustion. Give us bombs and grenades. Everything we are ready to bear and endure. Only preserve Hitler for us."

His speech touched off a hysterical demonstration reminiscent of those in Hitler's heyday.

Yank Forces Only 4 Miles Outside Pisa

By JAMES E. ROPER

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

ROME, July 22—American troops have pushed up the west coast of Italy to within four miles of Pisa, western anchor of the German's Gothic line, and other Fifth Army forces are fighting 15 miles due south of Florence. Allied headquarters reported today.

The Fifth and Eighth Armies are reported driving steadily northward all across the Italian front, capturing more than half a dozen large towns which the Germans had converted into strong points on the approaches to the Gothic line.

The Americans heading back the west wing of the German defenses already had sent patrols across the Arno river which flows westward through the Pisa area in a flanking swing around the city of the 16-mile front which was threatened by a frontal push from the south.

NEARING FLORENCE
The capture of Tavernelle in Val D'Elia and Castel Fiorentino, 15 miles south and 15 miles southwest of Florence, brought that big central hinge of the German defence line within striking range of the Fifth Army, and advanced elements already were driving on beyond both towns.

At the Adriatic end of the line, Polish troops drove well beyond the Elbing river in strength to within four miles of the fishing port of Senigallia at the mouth of the Misa river 16 miles beyond Ancona.

General advances on the flanks of the Eighth Army were reported, but progress was slow in the Anzico sector and in the upper Tiber valley.

Report Hitler Has Big Plane "Standing By"

NEW YORK, July 22—(AP)—NBC said yesterday that a clandestine German radio station had reported a four-engined transport plane capable of flying 10,000 miles was standing by at a secret airbase in Germany at the disposal of Adolf Hitler.

The station "implied that Hitler may be preparing to flee the country, or at least is getting things in readiness for any eventual emergency," NBC said. "The plane is the same craft that last year flew non-stop to Japan."

The station was "Radio Atlantic," reputed to be an anti-Nazi station which long has carried on a propaganda campaign against the Hitler regime, its situation and connections are a mystery.

Yanks Drive Ahead For Guam Airport

By FRANK TREMAINE

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin Copyright, 1944, by British United Press

PEARL HARBOR, July 22—U.S. marines and army troops, pushing from the north and south, drove toward a junction on the west coast of Guam today in an apparent effort to cut off Orote peninsula and its 4,700-foot airfield.

(Tokyo radio, in a broadcast recorded by U.S. federal communication commission monitors, acknowledged the landings on Guam, but claimed that the Americans were "in great confusion due to the tremendous losses inflicted by our forces." Tokyo said that the American forces suffered 4,300 casualties in the landings.)

While warships offshore hurled tons of explosives into Japanese positions inland, the assault troops, which landed seven miles apart early Thursday were fanning out from secured beachheads between Adelup and Asan points north of Orote peninsula and Agat and Bangi Point below the peninsula.

Tokyo estimated that one division, approximately 15,000 men, and 150 tanks were landed at Osan and a half division at Agat.

Foresees Coalition After Federal Vote

REGINA, July 22—(CP)—After the coming federal election, no party should have a sufficient majority to form a government in the House of Commons, Sam Carr of Toronto, national organizer of the Labor-Progressive party, last night told a public meeting here. He said a coalition of progressive-minded members would be necessary to offset the forces of reaction in the next Dominion parliament.

One Cause of Revolt New, Costlier "Stalingrad" Said Prepared by Hitler

Jon Kimche, military commentator for Reuters' News Agency, is a Soviet journalist with a deep inside knowledge of Germany and the Nazi military machine. His predictions during the last few months have won him wide praise in many countries.—EDITOR.

By JON KIMCHE
LONDON, July 22—(CP)—Evidence is accumulating that Hitler had prepared with grim deliberateness another and bigger and more costly Stalingrad. This undoubtedly was one of the contributory causes behind the attempt to assassinate him.

The northern army groups under General von Lindemann are disengaging in Latvia and Estonia—but they are not retiring into East Prussia. They are preparing a gigantic bridgehead from Lake Peipus by way of Dvinsk and Kovno to Koenigsberg. Thirty divisions of the 19th and 18th armies have been ordered to stay.

This decision to form a defensive island in the Baltic is definitely linked with the revolt of the generals.

So, too, is the known determination of the fuhrer to permit no retreats in the east.

It is questionable whether the German officers can have any illusion of what this really means. They can no longer doubt the effective superiority of the Red armies all along the 800-mile front. They can have no hope of stopping this steamroller.

For whatever scheme may be devised at general headquarters, the German armies are not free agents who can simply do what they are told. Their movement is dictated to a far larger degree by Russian action than by Hitler's orders.

The officials at Selective Service are appealing to business men who could use the students and teachers who are available, to get in touch with the Selective Service office immediately.

Coldwell Says Farm Prices Must Be Fair

GRANDE PRAIRIE, July 22.—(CP)—M. J. Coldwell, CCF leader, said in an address here last night that credit expansion as suggested by the Social Credit movement would not help the farmer.

Speaking in support of CCF candidates in the Alberta provincial election, Mr. Coldwell said the farmer must receive parity prices for his products sufficient to enable him to receive his just proportion of the national income and he must be assured of stable markets.

PLANNING REQUIRED

Planning was required to raise nutritional standards in Canada. "So long as there are 500,000 undernourished children in Canada, as a recent parliamentary investigation shows, agricultural depression is unthinkable," said Mr. Coldwell.

The farmer must be able to buy implements and supplies at fair prices, with "the destruction of monopolies that prey on worker and farmer alike by raising prices, restricting production and depressing wages."

"Monopolies" in milling, farm machinery and meat packing must be brought under social ownership and control. Public enterprise, and the conversion of war plants to peacetime use, must assure a flow of implements and supplies to all the people at reasonable prices, said Mr. Coldwell.

NATIONAL BANKING

National banking and credit union co-operatives alone could give real security, but the Social Credit movement had not decided to bring the banks under social ownership and control.

Planned production for use was needed to ensure the farmers would enjoy the amenities of city residents. Overall economic planning, such as had been resorted to for war, alone could assure an abundant life for all in the years ahead.

Progress Made In Discussion Of Bank Bill

OTTAWA, July 22.—(CP)—The banking committee yesterday made progress with the passage of clauses of the bank bill which extended bank charters for 10 years.

Finance Minister Ilsley obtained approval of an amendment making the shares' ownership qualifications for a bank director easier. The bill had provided that each director must hold stock of $3,000 when the bank capital stock is $1,000,000; $4,000 when the stock is up to $3,000,000 and $5,000 when the stock exceeds $3,000,000.

LOWER REQUIREMENTS

Mr. Ilsley said it was desired to facilitate the selection of bank directors of small means. His amendment provided that in the case of not more than one-quarter of the number of provisional directors the minimum requirements be reduced to $1,500, $2,500 and $2,500 in the various bank classifications.

G. G. McGeer, K.C. (L.-Vancouver Burrard) said that if a member with low stock holdings got on a bank board he might disclose the inner reserves.

(Mr. McGeer has asked in vain for banks' inner reserves to be revealed to the committee).

R. W. Mayhew (L.-Victoria, B.C.) said that if money was to be the qualification the figure should be high. But the real qualification should be ability. He would support the stock holding requirement being less with the other requirements higher.

S. G. Dobson, general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada, and vice-president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, said he felt it would not be wise to go below a stock holding of $2,500 at par value, but he did not think that figure should cause objection.

The banks were willing to have directors with small means.

APPROVAL NEEDED

Mr. McGeer said no man could become a bank director without approval of managerial control of the board. Mr. Ilsley's opinion, he believed, was that farm and labor interests should be represented on bank directorates.

A section providing for unclaimed bank balances to be turned over to the Bank of Canada after 10 years was held over for redrafting.

Fire Victim

MONTREAL, July 22.—(CP)—The body of an unidentified man was recovered from the hold of a 10,000-ton freighter which was damaged by fire last night at a wharf in Montreal harbor, while two other men, one a city fireman, suffered burns which required hospital treatment. They were: Joseph Sauvageau, 45, a shipworker, and Maurice Roger, 29, fireman.

In Italian Drive

Albertans With Dragoons As Nazis Chased North

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIAN CORPS IN ITALY, July 22.—(CP)—Operations of a squadron of the Royal Canadian Dragoons, commanded by Maj. Bill Veitch, Montreal, were in two phases of the Italian campaign after they were committed to the pursuit battle which followed the break-through of the Adolf Hitler line.

The first phase saw them chase the Germans from Pontecorvo, where they entered the battle, to the crossing of the Melfe river. Then they co-operated with a squadron of the same regiment, commanded by Maj. Al Brady, Windsor, Ont., to force the Germans from Ceccano, back through Frosinone Station to Ferentino.

Near the airport between Frosinone and Ferentino, a squadron was fired on by Germans established in a group of houses. Fire was brought down on the houses by armored cars and by the regiment's self-propelled guns, commanded by Lieut. Murray Thom. Kitchener, Ont., and Lieut. Tom Harvey, Montreal. The Germans were knocked out of the houses.

MEN FROM ALBERTA

Thom's troops included Cpl. Ted Etaschuk, Penhold, Alta. His gunners were Trs. Morris Hansen, Norquay, Sask., and Leon Racine, Picardville, Alta.

During a fight between the French and Germans Sgt. Wentworth Daniels, Toronto, and Cpl. Noel Calman, Vancouver, were asked to recon a bridge on the other side of the battle. The only way to do it was to wade upstream. Daniels and Calman waded 1½ miles, found the bridge unblown and uncharged. As soon as the fight had moved on the troops routed their advance over this bridge and saved time.

Passes at 73

WINNIPEG, July 22.—(CP)—Robert Shaw, 73, friend of the late Thomas A. Edison and one of the first men to introduce the gramophone into Canada, died here Thursday. He was a native of Montreal.

Co-Operative Farm Planned in Sask.

REGINA, July 22.—(CP)—Organization of co-operative farms in Saskatchewan will require "some little time to work out the proper basis for establishing the farms," Hon. L. F. McIntosh, minister of public works said Friday.

Mr. McIntosh will be minister of co-operatives and industrial development in the Saskatchewan government when the new department is set up.

An application for incorporation of a co-operative farm was received earlier in the year from the farmers of the Mildred and Fertile Valley municipalities. The farmers plan on establishing a co-operative farm at Mildred, about 85 miles southwest of Saskatoon.

In area the farm, first such co-operative project in Saskatchewan, would cover 150,000 acres or about 235 square miles of arable and pasture lands. The application is being considered by the co-operation and markets branch.

Pass Resolutions

OTTAWA, July 22.—(CP)—The House of Commons yesterday approved the last of the budget resolutions in committee of ways and means. Several dozen minor amendments to items in the tariff, changes in wording which neither increased nor reduced duties, went through without discussion after the house passed the group of items under which the tariff on farm implements are removed.

Dead are Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Carlson and daughter Carol, of Meeting Creek, and injured are Mrs. Morris Nelson and daughter Iris, of the same district. A resident of Edmonton for more than 30 years and owner of the Davis Taxi Co., Alfred H. Butlin died on a Vancouver-bound Canadian National Railway train Sunday. He was on his way to Vancouver to participate in the British Columbia lawn bowling tournament.

Henry Martell, "Mr. Big" amongst the local shot-makers, made it quite definite over the week-end that this wasn't the year to yield the city amateur golf championship and trophy, when he shot two blistering match play games at the Edmonton Golf and Country Club to capture his 10th straight title. Danny Mumaw posted a no-hit, no-run game at Kingsway Park yesterday afternoon when he pitched the U.S.A.A.F. Enlisted Men to a 4-0 victory over Central Aeroliners in the second half of the City Men's Fastball League doubleheader. The U.S. Officers moved back into first place in the curtain raiser with a 10-4 win over Moose. Yanks rang up a record score for the reason when they swamped Arrows 18-1 in Saturday night's Senior Baseball League game at Renfrew Park. Four pitchers paraded to the mound for the losers.

Tommy Brant and Helmut Brown hooked up in the sweetest duel of the season at Renfrew Park on Sunday afternoon, but the Dodgers broke a 1-1 deadlock when they counted five runs in a wild eighth inning and eventually wound up on the pay-off end of a 6-2 score.

Widely-known for her social welfare activities and her association with the Edmonton Little Theatre, Mrs. W. J. Dick, wife of W. J. Dick, regional oil controller, 11326 90 avenue, died Sunday night after a brief illness.

July 18

Carl Farvolden eliminated George Docherty from the men's open singles in the Civil Service Tennis Club's tournament when he took two out of three sets from the former champion, 4-6, 6-4, 7-5. The former Canadian Army basic training centre at Grande Prairie is to be taken over by the provincial government and operated as a veterans' rehabilitation and vocational training school, it was announced Tuesday by Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer and minister of education.

Elimination of "homo" milk was protested at a meeting of the Edmonton Trades and Labor Council Monday night at the Labor hall. Delegates expressed opinion that steps could have been taken by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board that would more efficiently save butter fat than did the abolition of homogenized milk. More than 900 army cadets from all sections of Alberta are at Sarcee camp preparatory to beginning an intensive 10-days of training.

Three passengers were taken to hospital and several others suffered cuts, bruises and shock when a white line street car crashed into the rear of a stationary blue and white line tram at Jasper avenue and 109 street shortly before 6 p.m. Monday. Royal Canadian Mounted Police were engaged in a manhunt Tuesday, searching for Paul Abraham, an Indian at Cherrill, whom they charge with the murder of his wife. The body of the woman, together with a 22 calibre rifle, was found Monday in some bushes a short distance from the camp site by the woman's father and other members of the tribe.

With a tour of almost 1,000 hours on long range anti-submarine patrols to his credit, PO. J. R. "Jimmy" Ward, a wireless air gunner, arrived back in the city from overseas early this week. Lt.-Col. E. Brown, M.M., E.D., chairman of the provincial government's soldier welfare commission, is expected to propose to the government that a conduction officer be appointed to travel to Winnipeg to meet trains returning with large numbers of men from overseas. This action arose out of a meeting held in Calgary over the week-end when members of the commission met with representatives of the Canadian Legion and the Canadian Army.

Occupancy of the children's shelter, now under lease to the United States government, will be given to the city on Aug. 16 under the terms of a lease termination received on Tuesday from the United States government by city commissioners.

July 19

The Dodgers' monopoly on first place in the City Senior Baseball League since early in the season took a tumble Tuesday night when the 1943 champion U.S. Army Yanks pounded Walter Johnson for eight hits and an 8-3 victory at Renfrew Park. The H.M.C.S. Nonsuch Club edged out U.S. Enlisted Men 3-2 in a game called during the ninth for disorderly conduct, and U.S.A.A.F. Officers trimmed Central-Aeroliners 7-3 Tuesday night as the provincial senior men's fastball playoffs opened at Kingsway Park.

A former Edmontonian, Staff-Sgt. Robert F. Campbell, U.S. Army, was recently accorded the first such high military citation to be bestowed on any enlisted man in this war—the Legion of Merit—United States' fourth highest military medal. This year for the first time since the war started, poultry meat was shipped from Canada to Great Britain in limited quantities. A few million pounds have been sent but according to A. F. Darnell, senior poultry products inspector in Alberta for the Dominion government, the best market has proved to be the United States.

Forty-two Alberta school teachers, answering the call to assist their country's war effort, left for the Canadian National Railway station for the shell-plant at Ajax, Ont., Tuesday night. The front end of a city street car was destroyed and the foremost trucks of the car were shoved 12 feet off the tracks, after it had been struck by a Canadian National Railways freight train at 114 avenue and 80 street about 2:20 a.m. Wednesday.

July 20

The U.S. Army Fort Richardson Depoters from Anchorage, Alaska, displayed their diamond prowess at Renfrew Park Wednesday night and were turned back 4-2 by the local Yanks in the opener of a two-game series. Walk-Rite "A" ran their unbeaten string in the City Girls' Fastball League to seven Wednesday night when they shut out Bombardiers 2-0 in the curtain raiser of a doubleheader. Army and Navy Pals edged out Walk-Rite "B" 3-2 in the second game.

The annual church parade of the 40th Battalion (The Royal Edmonton Regiment) Association, will take place on Sunday, Aug. 13. Extra gasoline coupons have been allowed all candidates and officials for use in the provincial general election campaign, it was learned Thursday at offices of the regional oil controller for Canada.

Shown clearly on a colored air map issued by Western Air Lines, Edmonton has a prominent spot in the air world of the future. Advance poll records for Edmonton are liable to be broken in the three days of advance polling preceding the Aug. 8 provincial election, according to local election officers. It has been suggested as many as 2,000 advance votes may be cast.

July 21

The Fort Richardson Depoters headed back to Anchorage, Alaska, defeated 6-3 by U.S. Army Yanks in the second game of the exhibition baseball series at Renfrew Park. The game was more interesting and better played than the first game and the losers turned in some nice ball to give the Yanks a real battle.

U.S.A.A.F. Officers entered the district final in the senior men's provincial fastball playdowns when they handed the Central-Aeroliners a 3-2 defeat to take the series two straight. H.M.C.S. Nonsuch won from the Enlisted Men 4-2 in the second contest of their series, but decision of the playoff is awaiting an answer of a letter to the president of the Alberta Fastball Association at Calgary.

July 22

More than 200 entries featured the light horse show which opened Friday night and which is continuing today. It is one of the most successful events of its kind ever held here. The quality of the horses has won widespread praise.

The weather forecast for the week-end indicates that it will be a pleasant period with plenty of sunshine. There are baseball games scheduled for tonight and tomorrow, while other outdoor recreation facilities are expected to be well patronized.

Conquest of Poverty

G. G. McGeer and Arthur Slight have failed in the Banking and Commerce Committee to persuade their fellow Liberals to implement the Liberal pledge of 1935 and 1940 that money would be made man's servant and not his master. Their attack on the banking situation, however, will be renewed in the House of Commons where the attitude of Liberal members, particularly Liberal members from Alberta, will be carefully noted by the many millions of Canadians who believe that Canada is in dire peril unless the private money monopoly is crushed.

Canada's contribution to her allies and to the Empire, as well as to herself, and the real post-war work of the Canadian people is to be found in building and expanding Canada upon a higher plane of community and national development.

To do that, Canadians must choose between usury and good will. Humanity can have peace on earth with good will. It cannot have peace on earth with usury. Canadians must break the private money trust, or the private money trust will break Canadians. They must be freed from the slavery of the debt system maintained as a privilege under the present banking system.

Most of our troubles in the past have arisen from the fact that we have placed material things above human values. We have made the wages of money more sacred than the wages of men. This must be changed. Money and our monetary system, with all its institutions, must be made the servants of both government and people.

Today Canada is financing a tremendous war. We have shown that we can circulate the necessary medium of exchange required to produce the needs of war on a scale undreamed of four years ago. But we still persist in issuing our medium of exchange through a toll gate where a private monopoly imposes interest charges and debt claim liabilities.

The result is that we are, through an ever-increasing interest-bearing debt load, giving to usury the power to enslave us in the midst of plenty.

Where unpayable debt exists there can be no real freedom. For debt binds health and freedom wherever it is imposed.

In the future, Canada wants freedom of religion, freedom of assembly and expression, freedom of self-government, freedom of commercial and industrial enterprise, freedom from want and freedom from fear. But we can never truly enjoy any of these essential foundations of contentment until we are free from the slavery of unpayable interest-bearing debts.

To achieve that end, the Government of Canada must employ its power to create and issue currency through the Bank of Canada as an additional means of financing public enterprise to that of taxation and borrowing upon which it largely depends today.

Community Legends

The news columns announce that a meeting has been called on Monday night in the War Services Centre where friends of the late Mrs. W. J. Dick and representatives of the many organizations with which she was connected will consider the establishment of a memorial to commemorate her devoted services to this community.

It has been proposed by the War Services Council that these organizations jointly sponsor the formation of a Muriel Dick Memorial Library, which would consist of volumes dealing with subjects in which Mrs. Dick was interested, placed in spots where they would be most accessible and useful to the public and to students.

This is a commendable suggestion. Nothing purely of this earth is so immortal as an idea. And books are incarnations of ideas.

Now it is not the function of any of these organizations to glorify themselves by glorifying a deceased member. Nor can anything they do increase or decrease the spiritual stature of a person who has passed to another world. But it is their function, organizationally and individually, to perpetuate legends of notable citizens so that the community may share in their immortality.

It is difficult to exaggerate the value of community legends. For nothing breeds good citizenship so readily as public recognition of good citizenship. Nothing so firmly establishes the intrinsic worth of self-sacrifice, kindness, generosity and community devotion as to outline in shining light the specific instance of one who was notably self-sacrificing, kind, generous and devoted.

Mrs. Dick possessed the wisdom that springs not from a vast intellect, but from a vast goodness of the heart. And this, after all, is the only true wisdom.

It is the sort of thing that Edmonton must zealously acquire and jealously conserve. A suitable memorial, translating this quality into a legend, is a legitimate and worthy community enterprise.

German Collapse

All the evidence, including the attempt on Hitler's life and the supreme power accorded the Gestapo, points to the cracking up of German morale and unity.

There seems to be little doubt that the demoralization of Germany has reached the same point it had achieved near the end of October in 1918. But there is this difference; the Kaiser Wilhelm possessed no such force as the Gestapo to hold the dissident elements together by violence and terror. As was pointed out on this page as long as two years ago, the terrible power of the Gestapo could conceivably hold the Reich together, even in the face of open rebellion, for as much as a year after conditions had paralleled those of 1918.

Such a feat of forcible cohesion would have to be attended by much luck. Luck, however, has already shown herself to be on the side of the Nazis. A Fuehrer who could survive the explosion of a bomb two yards away could, quite reasonably, claim the protection of the devil.

Under normal circumstances it would be logical to assume that the complete collapse and surrender of Germany would occur before the end of October.

But there are, as is pointed out, two unknown factors which might delay that collapse for months; the dread power of the Gestapo and the uncanny luck which appears to surround particularly evil men but which is only the extra advantage they temporarily acquire from their utter ruthlessness.

We are safe, however, in saying this; that while Germany's present sickness may not be immediately fatal, it is certainly mortal. The Nazi structure is rotten with mortality.

There is undoubtedly a sharp and bitter breach between Hitler and the officer or junker class. But that breach has always existed. Nazism is a product of South German idlers and demagogues. It has always been hateful to North German aristocrats although the international objectives of Nazis and junkers are exactly the same. It should not have been hard to foresee that the decisive break, when it did come (and as it was bound to come) would arise between these two groups.

Hitler charges his junker generals with a plot to surrender to the enemy. Undoubtedly such a plot existed. The Allies, however, would not have been deceived by it nor by the pious faces of the renegades. For Hitler's denunciation of them is perfectly true. There is only one thing lower than a Nazi and that is a traitor to Germany while Germany is fighting for her life.

Alberta Election

Editor, Bulletin: Your editorials have always stood out for fair play, giving credit where credit was due irrespective of party or creed, but the one on the Alberta election dated Monday, July 10th was a masterpiece. It was based on facts and should make every voter in Alberta think before he votes. More power to that kind of journalism.

Mr. Coldwell's Error

Editor, Bulletin: M. J. Coldwell, national leader of the CCF, makes the fatal error of assuming that because an industry or business makes a profit that industry or business must be state owned so that the profit can go to the state for the benefit of the people.

Today profit is taxed 40 per cent of normal and 100 per cent above normal. Taxation does not stop there, but the profit remaining is again taxed to the vanishing point when received by the shareholder in the form of dividends.

The CCF proposes to do away with the profit motive. Business men, large and small, can tell Mr. Coldwell his ideas are largely in effect right now due to the present taxes.

The CCF overlooks the fact that taxes are being paid to the state from forms of profit and their policy would kill absolutely not only the profit motive but enterprise of every kind. They overlook the fact that necessity makes all Canadians civil servants in one way or another. Under their system, all would be at the mercy of the state for a chance to exist. Do we want to lose freedom?

Treason

Editor, Bulletin: Re your article on a so-called French patriot's condemnation of the British Tommy, may I as one who travelled with him through Sicily and Italy, voice my opinion?

I think all of my comrades in arms will agree that the British Tommy is tops under all conditions. He fought and stuck to the end on less pay and privileges than we were getting. I would like to see this full fed political bee make the same statement in front of a few men from the fighting lines.

Why is this element allowed to get away with rank treason? Of course, we can only draw one conclusion from existing conditions in Canada today and that is that the government and enforcement officers are afraid of our eastern traitors.

In my opinion we should take these political parasites who roam the country trying to wreck what has taken hundreds of years to build, to a very strict internment camp not only for the duration of the war but for life. Otherwise it may be left for the lads who are fighting for freedom to come home and fight for it here too and believe me they are fully prepared to do just that.

R. MILNE.

No Experience

Editor, Bulletin: Listening to CCF speakers over C.J.C.A. radio station one is liable to get the impression that the CCF has been in effect for many years and where it has been it worked wonders. They even criticize our provincial government for not doing what they thought and what might have bettered conditions. It does not take a super intelligence to reason that to give to the many in need an extra $25.00 would tend to use up our surplus goods which due to a lack of our means of exchanging services for said goods, when such services and goods are needed, but cannot be had under our present distributing system.

The CCF should have mentioned, to be fair, that Alberta was privileged from trying out her experiment by our dominion government at Ottawa. They should have mentioned that they did the next best by placing Alberta treasury branches at different points throughout our province in order to better the conditions above mentioned. They might also have mentioned, in order to be fair and just, that Alberta has made more improvements under our present government than most provinces. The extra five bucks added to the dominion grant to those in need was not even mentioned. Why?

Now they are seeking the right to try out their ideas, and so far all they have to offer is their ideas and the claim that each year they gain more support. But all must agree that they have not proven anything by actual experiment. If they had, the criticism of those they mentioned over the radio may not have been needed, because by actual proof all would know their ideas to be of more value. Acts speak louder than words, and every fair minded person knows that Alberta has tried to better conditions and is still trying.

Policy on Japs

Editor, Bulletin: As you and your paper are the most persistent exponents of the unutilized policy of sending the Japanese people all back to Japan at the conclusion of the war, I am enclosing a quotation that it would be well for you to study in order that you might learn how another great nation deals with the question of the Japanese.

The latest issue of the "Christian Century," published in Chicago and admittedly the most influential journal of its kind in the world, quotes from a soldier in Italy:

"May I suggest that you send all those narrow-minded un-Americans over here to relieve the 100th Infantry Battalion of the 34th Division. This battalion, composed of American soldiers of Japanese descent, has one of the proudest records of the war. Out of its 1,000 men, 900 have been awarded the Purple Heart medals for wounds suffered in battle. 56 have been honored with the Silver Star, 21 have Bronze Stars and three the Distinguished Service Cross. More than 400 have been killed."

Quality of Shoes

Editor, Bulletin: Can the manufacture of very cheap shoes be justified? They are so poorly made that they come apart or get loose in a short time. Sometimes a factory-cemented sole will come off within one hour's wear.

While we may not criticize the use of cheap material, it should be made secure. So many styles or designs are made, the seams of which will not stand usual strain. A pair of shoes often have one good sole and the other only one. The value. Making such poor shoes is one of the greatest manufacturing crimes.

The WPTB could better their services a great deal and save millions of wasted dollars and hours of time by looking into this.

Preference

Editor, Bulletin: As a veteran who passed through the period of demobilization after the last war, I beg leave to make the following suggestion for that most trying period for a soldier who has been some years overseas.

These men will feel as the break-up of their army organizations occur, that they have been cut adrift from their civilian connections, and that those members of the army who remained close to civilian life in Canada during the war are more likely to succeed in replacing themselves in decent jobs. As members of the armed services are discharged they are issued a badge showing honorable service. The veteran organizations and discharge authorities should impress on the discharged soldier the necessity of wearing these marks of distinction for the purpose, chiefly, of comrad-

A Campaign Without Hysteria

"Front Porch" Tactics Are Favored by Both U.S. Nominees

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Mr. Dewey proposes to conduct an unusual campaign for the presidency of the United States. He says he will not start to fight seriously until well on into the autumn. During the summer he will take a "long pause." His view is that a month or six weeks will be quite long enough to bring his policies to the attention of the nation. Meanwhile he is carrying on as governor of New York, and at Albany the other day he replied to all questions of a serious character with the remark: "No comment."

If Mr. Dewey adheres to his plans, this will be an unusual and subdued presidential campaign. Mr. Roosevelt is not expected to make many speeches. As in 1940, he will be too busy with the business of the nation, and while in 1940 he was finally pressed by the powerful crusade of Mr. Willkie to abandon his vow of silence and make several major speeches, this time he will have little leisure for such activities. Moreover, he will probably demonstrate the nation's essential need of him in the White House better by attending strictly to the management of the war than by talking about it.

Several candidates for the presidency have refused to hark from the country. At one time the "front porch" campaign was the tradition. The candidate simply made speeches from his own veranda and let the press carry them to the people. The last experiment of this sort, Mr. Harding's campaign in 1920, was a success politically, though not otherwise.

Mr. Dewey is quite right when he says that a free election at this time is a living proof of the strength of American democracy. Only a nation of free men, sure of its freedom and confident in its political system, would dare to plunge into an election controversy at such a critical moment. In Mr. Dewey's judgment a clean, honest, hard-fought campaign will unite rather than divide the American people. "The doom of the Axis," he says, "will come sooner because we are so strong we can argue among ourselves and fight a war better as we do it." In this belief he does not wish to start his campaign early and keep the country at a fever pitch of excitement for four months while the war is rushing to its climax.

We are going to start this campaign, he says, in the most critical period of our history. We are going to prove in this campaign to all the world, including our enemies, that America is the most united nation in the world. We are going to prove it because we are almost the only nation in the whole world which would dare risk an election during the most critical phase of the war. "We can risk an election because to us that means we are free men and women. We are going to keep the things we are fighting for and strengthen them by having an election in these times."

Throughout this campaign the points upon which we are agreed will become clear, that even Hitler and Hirohito can understand them.

While the points of agreement among both political parties are clear enough—the necessity of maintaining free government under the constitution—there are grave cleavages within the parties on many other issues. Mr. Roosevelt is faced today with a revolt in the Solid South which always provides the core of Democratic strength. The Republican party is stressing the protest of the South against the New Deal and against the President's sympathy with the Negroes, but the Republican party itself is in a state of schism also. Mr. Roscoe Drummond, the chief political writer of The Christian Science Monitor, which supported the Republican party in 1940, writes that this Republican schism is evident in the fact that nineteen Republican governors in a body tried to secure a stronger internationalist platform than the party convention would adopt; and the other fact that "the convention ultimately gave its presidential nominee a platform which was vague, evasive and self-contradictory, and which Governor Dewey started to amend within twelve hours after he was nominated. Why does the Republican platform face both directions on at least three major issues? On collaboration to secure peace, on trade, on domestic finance? The honest reason is that the Republican party is deeply divided on these matters."

"It is an asset," says Mr. Drummond, "to a resourceful presidential nominee to have a party charter which does not greatly tie his hands, but it is a liability to Mr. Dewey not to know whether his own party can be effectively united behind the specific and detailed programme which he will have to evolve from its framework of loose generalities and conflicting promises. As far as divisions within his party go, Governor Dewey's difficulties are as acute as President Roosevelt's."

Thus the campaign opens in deep confusion. What chiefly concerns the world is whether, in this confusion, the real issues of world concern will be blurred or lost.

Brighter Side

BRANTFORD EXPOSITOR

Here's something else for chronic worriers to worry about. The American Astronomical Society has received from Dr. D. B. McLaughlin communications to show what would happen if the sun became a nova. (Any star may become a nova by exploding, and such explosions are fairly frequent.) According to Dr. McLaughlin, if the sun exploded it would shine about 100,000 times more brightly than usual for about ten days. This would create so much heat that the earth's surface would boil and rocks would turn to liquid and vapor. Optimists will be glad to note, however, that this would affect rocks only to a depth of about seven miles.

She returned from the dance in a fearful temper. "I have no confidence in men," she told her mother. "But why not, dear?" The girl pursed her lips. "Every time I go to a dance with another boy, I find my own boy friend there with another girl," she explained.

"What Can I Do for You?"

By G. V. FERGUSON

A good many people come into a newspaper office in the course of a day with this or that errand to perform, this or that request, or this or that protest to make. There was therefore nothing out of the ordinary about the arrival in my office a few days ago of an unknown man dressed in a khaki shirt open at the neck, a pair of khaki slacks and a battered old felt hat in his hand. What did he have on his mind, I wondered, and why did he sit down in a chair with hardly a word and look at me solemnly with gentle, brown, troubled eyes?

"What can I do for you?" I asked, and he told me what he hoped I could do for him. We spent forty minutes together, and when he left there was no more work for me that day. I went home to a house that happened by chance to be empty, and spent a long time thinking of my new friend's home, empty too, but for another reason. And here the story is, which I give without names, for I don't think my friend would like his name to be used.

I suppose, that his three of the years were good and some of them were very bad, but my friend kept on working and he managed to get his three boys an education and to bring them up decent young Canadians. I know that, for I've seen a few letters they have written, and the kind of boys they are, and the kind of home they came from shines clearly from their pages. They had pretty well grown up in Winnipeg and Manitoba when 1939 and 1940 came along, and I wasn't very long before my friend had three boys in the armed services writing him letters, and he was left at home wondering a bit what had gone wrong with his fine plan to bring them up safely in Canada, far away from Europe where there were constant troubles and recurring war.

I suppose by now that you have guessed the next chapter in this little story. My friend had come into the newspaper office to report the fact that two of his boys won't come home—ever. One of them is missing after an air raid over Germany. He was what is called a Fire Controller, which means he had a place in the leading bomber in the formation and was responsible for directing whatever defensive fire was needed by his squadron. The other boy was a despatch rider in a battery of Canadian artillery. He landed in Normandy with the Third Canadian division, and he is dead too. One boy is left, also in the air force and in action every day.

So my friend came in and told me this and I sat listening with grief and horror, and he told me what I could do for him. He thought perhaps a newspaperman could do something to make it impossible for this sort of thing to happen again; and I didn't have much to say. What was there to be done? My friend was a man, but they were all born in Russia, but they were very small when he left. Kusk and came to Manitoba. So the years passed, and sometimes, after all, for nothing anybody could say would bring those two decent young Canadians, back to Manitoba again?

And it seemed such a very far cry from the deeds and heroism of those two lads to the attempts now being made in London and Moscow and Washington—yes, and in Ottawa too—to build a world after the fighting is over in which there will be more than a reasonable chance of a durable peace. So much seemed to depend upon the great people of the world, the leaders and the statesmen. Yet how little can even they do if the little people—my friend and I among them—are not convinced too that we need not live always in tragedy and that some things are given up for the sake of a peaceful world, some of our cherished prejudices, for instance, some of our narrowness, some of the belief that it is possible to build a fire-proof house for ourselves no matter how the flames rage elsewhere. But it hardly seemed worth saying to my new friend, whose sorrow and whose bravery I will always remember.

Expropriation Of Power Said Election Trick

MONTREAL, July 22—(CP)—Expropriation of the Montreal, Light, Heat and Power Consolidated, by the Quebec government was termed a "pre-electoral trick" to "electrocute" the Quebec electors, by Maurice Duplessis, leader of the Union Nationale party, in an election campaign address Thursday night at nearby St. Laurent.

He said his party favored the expropriation of public services "only when absolutely necessary." It favored the free enterprise system because it permitted the ordinary workingman and farmer to become a property owner.

SUPPORTS CANDIDATE—Mr. Duplessis spoke at a meeting in support of Mayor Anatole Carignan of Lachine who is candidate for Jacques Cartier constituency in the August 8 Quebec election.

In a broadcast address, Angus Rose, CCF candidate for Montreal St. Ann, said the CCF had been fighting the battles of trade unionism ever since it was founded "and with rare exceptions it has fought alone." Labor would have been "defenceless" in parliament except for the CCF.

"If governments would let unions alone, unions might let politics alone, but governments won't, so Canadian unions now are in politics, one way or another, whether they like it or not."

Jean Marie Bedard, CCF candidate for Montreal Mercier, said the CCF was a "Socialist party" while the Liberals, Union Nationale and Bloc Populaire were "capitalist parties."

Two Salmon Passes At Hell's Gate, B.C., Finished by April

OTTAWA, July 22—(CP)—Fisheries Minister Beaudry said yesterday in the Commons he expects two salmon passes being constructed at Hell's Gate, B.C., to be completed by next April.

It was hoped the runs would be restored to the size that was general before a landslide blocked the passage in 1941.

Had the 1941 catch been as great as that of 1913 it would have yielded a return of $40,000.00 instead of $8,000.00.

The minister expressed appreciation to the Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, an international body of which Tom Reid (L.-New Westminster) is a member, for their work on the project.

Ask War Plants Produce Farm Machine Parts

OTTAWA, July 22—(CP)—The use of war plants not working at full capacity to manufacture farm implements repair parts was urged yesterday in the Commons by several members.

J. G. Diefenbaker (PC—Lake Centre) said every effort should be made by the government to remedy the serious shortage of farm implements and farm repair parts.

D. McNeven (L.—Regina City) said he knew of some war plants which could be used for the manufacture of repair parts and he urged the government give the matter consideration.

The suggestion was supported by P. E. Wright (CCF—Melfort).

Finance Minister Fliley said the shortage of farm implements was receiving constant attention of the prices board.

Courage

By CPL. FRED W. ANDERSON
"Sir, am I being brave enough?"
The wounded sailor lay
Upon the deck. An admiral gruff
Bent over him that day.

The wounded man was but a lad.
His youthful eyes had seen
So very little that was bad,
So much of what was clean.

And now the admiral knelt down,
His aging head did bow,
And softly answered, "Yes, my son,
Just take it easy now."

"Sir, am I being brave enough,
Good Master in the sky?"
The world is hard, the going tough,
There's many a tear and sigh.

"I have been wounded for Thy sake
The cup that Thou didst drink
Has overflowed my thirst to slake,
Yet now I sink—O sink."

"Oh, tell me truly—is there One
Will soothe my fevered brow?"
The Master answered, "Yes, my son,
Just take it easy now."

Cotton jewelry made out of fabrics like red and white gingham buttons and tiny leaves of green lettuce is a current fad.

A Prayer For My Son

By ETHEL SHARP ZIMMERMAN

When he was little, Father dear,
I held him close, I kept him near.
Now he is grown, I cannot be
With him on the storm-tossed sea.
So, wilt Thou, blessed Son of God,
Walk with him, as of old You trod
Upon the wind-whipped Galilee?

When he was little, Father dear,
I soothed his hurt, I calmed his fear.
Now he is grown, I cannot know
The dangers he must undergo.
So, wilt Thou, precious Elder Brother,
Help him, keep him in the cover
Of Thine arms, stay every blow?

When he was little, Father dear,
I taught him not to yield to fear.
Now he is grown, 'Tis only Thou
Canst help him face the angry sea.
So, wilt Thou guide him, help him, bless
Him, as he hears the battle's stress?
Then, please God, peace! and home to me!

Will Talk Of The Life He Lived

By ERNEST CROSBY

So he died for his faith! That is fine—

More than most of us do.

But say, can you add to that line

That he lived for it too?

In his death he bore witness at last

To a martyr to truth.

Did his life do the same in the past

From the days of his youth?

It is easy to die. Men have died

For a wish or a whim—

From bravado or passion or pride.

Was it harder for him?

But to live—every day to live out

All the truth that he dreamed.

While his friends met his conduct

With doubt.

And the world with contempt.

Was it thus that he plodded ahead,

Never turning aside?

Then we'll talk of the life that he lived.

Never mind how he died.

Are We Deserving of Peace?

IT IS A GOOD THING for us to keep in mind, in the midst of the aching anxieties that are tugging at our hearts, that we are not the only people who have passed through such calamities. Apart altogether from the many examples which secular history gives us of this fact, you have only to open your Bibles and read passages from Isaiah and Jeremiah to find that the records there given of Jewish national disasters pretty closely match our own. We read, "The country is desolate, the cities burned with fire, the land devoured by strangers, the cities wasted without inhabitant, fear is on every side, a sound of battle is in the land, and of great destruction, they are cruel and will not show mercy, the earth is moved and the cry is heard among the nations." These sentences describe things that were happening 25 centuries ago. They might be an exact description of what has taken place in Poland, Norway, Holland, France and elsewhere in our own day. It is wise therefore to notice how other nations fared in circumstances very much like our own, how they kept their faith and courage, and how they came out victorious in the long run.

One of the chief things to notice about these people was that they believed in prayer and that they prayed just as we are doing for relief from the pressure of their powers and arrogant enemy. But God often made use of their difficulties to make them realize certain lessons. I wonder if God is not making use of this war to teach us some lessons we very much need to learn. We are praying to Him—how is He answering us?

He is answering us, by showing us in the awful events of the day, the true nature of things. He is showing us in ways that nothing else could, to what an abyssal depth human nature can fall at its worst. He is showing us how little, at best, we are moved in our relations with each other, by spiritual influences and how strongly we are in the grip of a purely material view of life. He is showing us how far we have failed the Gospel of His Son. He is showing us what a flagrant disregard there is in the world, generally speaking, for the inner sanctities of life. It may very well be that God is allowing the present painful events to drive these solemn lessons home to us. God has a whole lot of lessons to teach us before we are worthy of victory and peace. And if anyone asks, "Where is your religion and your God in these alarming days?" my answer would be, "God is on the battlefields of the world answering our prayers in the way in which they first need to be answered."

We recall the prayers of 1918 for victory and peace. And mingled in those prayers was the hope and intention to make a better world—a more Christ-like world through the awful experience of war. But how quickly we drifted back to the old ways with most of the hopes and great intentions forgotten. Are we going to do the same thing again? If so, we are not worthy of peace.

Surely it must be clear to us now that no nation can live selfishly unto itself, that no nation can turn its back on God, that no nation can play fast and loose with the sanctities of human life without poisoning its own life and plunging into catastrophe its fellowmen. Has ever such a demonstration of the exceeding sinfulness of sin been given to the world since the Cross of Calvary as the cruelties that are being perpetrated today and the spirit that lies at the back of them? Surely God is speaking out in larger letters than He has ever used before that "the wages of sin is death." It would seem as though God is saying to all of us, "You are praying for peace. But before I give you that peace you long for, you must be prepared to welcome it and cherish it, and use it in the way it deserves to be used. You must this time be worthy of peace."

As I see things today, the horrors of war are a solemn call to the Church to remind her of what she stands for, to have done with complacency, to take the field actively for Christ and His Kingdom. The horrors of war are a solemn call to each of us particularly and personally, admonishing us of how pitifully we fall short of what we should be and what we should be doing. God grant that these days may call us all back to the eternal truths and the beauty and simplicity of holy living. God is speaking to us today, not in the still small voice, but in the violence of the whirlwind; by terrible things in His righteousness He is answering our prayers.

May we each seek earnestly to know more fully the eternal truths of God and put them into active service. May the awful lessons God has to teach us be fully realized and we begin to build a new world in the only place we can truly begin—in our own hearts and lives. Then, and only then, will we be worthy of peace.

CCF Speakers Hold Meeting Jasper Place

Three Co-operative Commonwealth Federation candidates in the Edmonton constituency seeking election in the provincial general election of Aug. 8, and one candidate in the next Dominion general election spoke at a meeting held at the Jasper Place Community Hall on Friday evening.

The three provincial candidates who spoke were J. E. Enright, Mrs. F. C. Butterworth and J. H. Dowler. Miss Mary B. Crawford candidate in the Dominion constituency of West Edmonton also spoke.

J. Russell Love was chairman. Mr. Enright stated that "We have been living under a 'dog-eat-dog' system of ruthless competition which has developed into monopoly and economic dictatorship, resulting in two terrific wars and a miserable depression in the space of a generation."

"I invite those of my listeners who prefer working in co-operation with their fellow men in a world of plenty, to secure the necessities and comforts of life to join the CCF and help develop its program."

Mr. Enright said that to have true democracy the people must have economic as well as political democracy, that is, they must control the economic forces which govern their very existence. The people must own and control the means whereby they live.

A PRINCIPLE

"The CCF advocates the establishment of a co-operative commonwealth in which the principle regulating production, distribution and exchange would be the satisfying of human needs and not the making of profits," he said. "Its method is ownership and development of the natural resources of this province would result in education, health services, increased allowances for dependent mothers, adequate pensions for the disabled and increased old age pensions at an earlier age."

Mrs. Butterworth said that "Without health we have nothing. Education has been taken out of the field of free enterprise and no one would want to put it back. Health is at least as important as education and health services too must be made free and available to all the people. Health is dependent on good food, clothing and shelter, with adequate income and nutrition standards. Canada can consume practically all she produces, with the exception of wheat, which we can exchange for what we do not produce. In fact, eggs, meat, and milk production would have to be increased. Canada's prosperity does not depend on foreign trade."

HOUSING PROGRAM

"Canada has needed a housing program since before the depression; a plan under which fully modern houses can be built for medium and low income groups, urban and rural. Many existing homes need repair while others should be replaced. The province has the resources, the CCF will put them to work for you."

J. H. Dowler said "I saw what happened after the last war and I know what is going to happen after this one, unless we act in time to prevent it."

REQUIRES ACTION

He pointed out that it will require action in the Dominion field and corresponding action in the provincial field to bring about a better order in Canada.

"The Social Credit party has been in office nine years and has failed to carry out its policy in the main respects, lower taxation, a higher standard of living, and the payment of a dividend. Taxation has doubled and so far as the dividend is concerned, the national leader of the party now admits that Social Credit cannot be implemented in one province alone. But they have no support outside of Alberta. What then have the people to gain by electing another Social Credit government? The CCF have a policy that can be made effective not only in the province but throughout the nation."

"The soldiers in Canada," said Mr. Dowler, "have voted two to one for the CCF idea. That is a sign that they are looking not to Social Credit but to the CCF to bring in the new order for which they are fighting."

NOT LOCAL MATTER

Miss Crawford said, "This provincial election in Alberta is not just a local matter. It is one episode in a great world movement of people to abundant life that science has made possible for all mankind. It is part and parcel of the struggle for democracy."

"The CCF is the party of democracy in this country and all the nonsense about national socialism, regimentation, bureaucracy and all the rest of it, will not alter that fact. The CCF is democratic in its organization and in its policies. Its dominant purpose is that Canada shall do her part in translating the promise of the Atlantic Charter into reality by bringing democracy right into the homes and lives of her people."

"Our young men, over there, are risking everything. We, over here, must do our part. We must keep faith with them. The only way to make their sacrifice worth while is to make of Canada a good and happy place, not only for heroes to return to, but a good and happy place for them and their wives and children, their relatives and friends to live in."

German Officers are Urged Not to Obey Hitler's Orders

LONDON, July 21.—(AP)—A speaker on the Frankfurt radio station's wave length, claiming to be a German officer, called early today for other officers to rise against the Gestapo and then suddenly left the air in the middle of the speech.

The broadcast began after German home stations had closed down and it was not clear whether insurgents had seized the station or whether it was an underground station using the Frankfurt wave length.

A similar anti-Nazi broadcast was heard on the same wave length yesterday at about the same time.

The speaker appealed to fellow officers not to follow Hitler's orders, but to "relieve Germany of the Nazi system."

Broadcasting on the Frankfurt radio wave length the speaker declared, "The action continued in spite of the death of Count von Stauffenberg."

The speaker said: "My comrades, by order of the commander of the army group of resistance I announce: Col. Count Claus von Stauffenberg has obeyed orders and dealt the first blow against the Nazi government."

The speaker continued: "The initial action attempt against Hitler's life has failed. Col. von Stauffenberg is dead, but the general action continues. We German officers are waging a battle against Hitler and his clique relentlessly and unhesitatingly and shall fight until this criminal regime has been finally exterminated."

"It is not true that the revolt and resistance movement has collapsed. German officers and soldiers should stand together now and wipe out the rotten Gestapo system and the Nazi clique who are leading Germany to inevitable ruin and disaster. Now is the time to act swiftly and energetically."

The voice said: "Every officer has a duty to offer armed resistance to Gestapo arrest. Let Hitler know this much for certain—there is more than one Stauffenberg. These Stauffenbergs are here in the thousands." At this point the talk was abruptly ended.

Air Power

What Is Strategic Force?

By Maj. A. P. de Seversky

The War Department has organized all superbombers, the B-29's, into a special organization known as the Twentieth Air Force. It will not be stationed in any particular theatre, but will be available for assignment by the Joint Chiefs of Staff where needed, just as naval fleets are assigned.

Such unusual arrangements for the new bombers gave the signal for widespread comment to the effect that the strategic value of air power has finally been recognized. The B-29, some of the comment declared, marks the beginning of true global aerial warfare, since it will be used anywhere on the globe as required.

Such interpretations indicate a sad lack of understanding of strategic air power in military and lay circles alike.

What constitutes a strategic force in any military sphere? It is a force that can, by its own direct and independent action, destroy the enemy's means to wage war. When the army of one nation destroys the army of another, the war ends. In the case of an insular country, if its navy is destroyed by the opposing navy, a blockade starves it into capitulation.

In our time it is possible to navigate in a new medium, the air. Air power has become a strategic force because, by direct and independent action it can do two things: (1) destroy the enemy's means of waging war by demolishing his industrial set-up for war making, and (2) blockade the nation in three dimensions and starve it into capitulation.

This is the kind of force which has not yet been acknowledged by Allied leadership, in spite of the great opportunities offered by the present war. Even in the aerial Battle of Germany, where air power was getting impressive results along strategic lines and seemed headed for victory, everything was called off in favor of tri-phibious operations.

PICTURE UNALTERED

The unique organization of the B-29 into another kind of "task force" does not alter the picture. No matter how big it is, a task force cannot be considered a strategic force. The whole notion of a task force, now so popular with our military leaders, is a reflection of the influence of air power.

Air power is today the only force that can end war by its direct and independent action. It can disregard armies and navies, can by-pass them and pound the enemy's war machine. Armies and navies, on the other hand, cannot carry out their functions until freedom of action is guaranteed for them by air power.

Having failed to provide ourselves with aircraft of adequate range, we have been obliged to fight for air bases all over the globe. Land and sea forces, no longer enjoying a direct strategic function of their own, combined into task forces whose sole task is to acquire bases, fixed or floating, to make up for the insufficient range. Once the aircraft is brought within striking distance of the enemy, it can do its strategic job.

And here we find the fly in the military ointment. Our investment in a strategic air force is so small in comparison with that in land and sea forces that our air power is still incapable of scoring a decision quickly and conclusively. At the slightest weakening of the enemy from the air, we pounce on him by land and sea, reverting back to tri-phibious assault. This gives great satisfaction to the orthodox military mind, but denies air power the chance to prove its strategic possibilities.

In the light of these facts, the Twentieth Air Force cannot possibly be called strategic. It is simply bigger and better artillery thrown into action to support surface strategy here and there as needed. It is in effect an aerial version of the Big Bertha, which the Germans dragged from one front to another in the last war. It is a softening-up weapon which, in the words of General Arnold, "will strike at the sources of enemy strength and prepare the way for ultimate decision by our well-established team of land, sea and air forces."

MANY BENEFITS

All the same there are many benefits flowing from the creation of this new air force for the superbombers. It will preclude the misuse of this equipment for chasing tanks, killing individual riflemen and doing other such chores on the battlefields. Its long-range operations will provide practical demonstrations of how air power can and ought to be applied strategically. It will encourage the creation of aircraft able to span oceans, thus obviating the need to struggle for in-between air bases.

Strategic force, wherever used, must be manned for continuous action looking to a decision. That was true at Waterloo on land and at Trafalgar on water. Had we intended to use the B-29 strategically, we would not have put it into operation until we possessed enough so that, once started, we could have continued bombing Japan without interruption to a decision.

The sporadic use indicated for the B-29, as circumstances permit, definitely removes it from the category of strategic forces. It is just a huge gun that sends a few shells here and there to harass the enemy or help our surface actions. The Twentieth Air Force is an almost flawless example of how real strategic air force ought not to be used. Indeed, it is nothing but auxiliary aviation deluxe.

General Koiso Is Appointed Jap Premier

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin Copyright, 1944, by British United Press Tokyo announced today that Gen. Kuniaki Koiso, former governor-general of Korea, has been appointed premier of a new Japanese cabinet of conservative elder army, and business leaders to succeed the discredited extremist government of Gen. Hideki Tojo.

The German Transoceanic agency said Tojo had been placed on the retired list of the army, completing the downfall of the second of three Axis dictators.

The choice of experienced leaders to take over the helm of the government was seen as an attempt to rally the Japanese people and armed forces to new exertions in the face of the growing Allied threat to their homeland, highlighted by the invasion of Guam and the conquest of Saipan, 1,500 miles south of Tokyo.

Marshal Gen. Sugiyama, former army chief of staff, was named war minister and Mamoru Shigemitsu was returned to the foreign ministry, the post he held in the Tojo cabinet. Former Premier Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, commissioned by Emperor Hirohito with Koiso to form the new cabinet, took the navy ministry, a portfolio he held from 1937 to 1939.

Announcement of the new government ended a five-day domestic crisis touched off by the en bloc resignation of Tojo's cabinet last Thursday with the admission that it could not win the war, an admission that came almost simultaneously with the acknowledgement of the loss of Saipan.

LOS ANGELES, July 22.—(AP)—Mildred Harris, actress and first wife of Charlie Chaplin, died Thursday of pneumonia following an abdominal operation. She was 41.

The sporadic use indicated for the B-29, as circumstances permit, definitely removes it from the category of strategic forces. WE ASK YOUR SUPPORT Because —

WHOSE OIL IS IT?

In 1942 twenty oil companies taking our oil in Alberta earned for their shareholders $7,000,000. The government in royalties, rents, etc., after paying costs of administration got three-quarters of a million dollars.

Up to the end of 1943 the Royalite Oil Company shareholders profited to the extent of $26,733,251.

All the millions which have gone to these affiliates of world monopolies should have gone to the people of Alberta.

Whose Oil Is It?

The Social Credit Government claims more money has gone into Turner Valley than has come out. That may be true because 1,400 little companies which have started in Alberta have died. They were the little fellows who had to do some drilling to get the suckers to put up the money for shares. The money went into stock promotion schemes, not to get oil. The Big Oil interests got the oil while the little investors lost their money.

A C.C.F. government will not squander the people's money. It will use the same engineering skill and business sense in developing the oil field to get wealth for the people as the big oil companies now use to get profits for themselves.

The Social Credit government is frantically trying to hide what has taken place. They declare they have not given the title to oil lands to anybody. That is true, but they gave leases granting the right to take our oil. The people can have the dry hole when the oil is gone. A C.C.F. government will cancel those leases at once. A provincial government has full power to do so.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW

By Jack DeLong

EDMONTONIANS will be sitting in on a regulation running race meet at the Exhibition track for the first time in years from August 5 to 15 but like everything else in these cataclysmic times there will be many changes in and around the track before the horses go to the post for the opening gallop.

War has laid its heavy maled hand upon the sport of kings with owners, trainers, jockeys, valets, hurdle riders, groomers and others in and around the track, having answered their country's call. More than 70 who made their living from racing in the Canadian west are now with the fighting forces.

Augie Sylvester, one of the top notch riders on western tracks, is with the United States Army in Australia, and Ray Nielson, another American jockey, is with the United States Pacific fleet. Sammy Baird is a pilot with the R.C.A.F. while Art Stewart and Willie Devlin are with the Canadian forces in Italy.

Capt. Frank Eaton, one of the best known of owner-trainers in the west from Alia, Alberta, is with the Canadian Army. Owner Lorne Pilling is an officer in the R.C.A.F. and Maj. B. T. McFarlane, formerly with the par-mutual department is again in uniform.

Several others have done their bit and after being discharged from the forces, are again working on the course. These include Joe Braddish, John Kipling Jr. and "Toughy" Fisher. Braddish will soon be back in the saddle after being injured during the first day of the Calgary stampede meeting.

Move Into Third Place Tie in City Baseball League

Arrows Edge Out U.S. Signallers 8-7

Hawkey Hurls Great Game For Winners

OUTSTANDING pitching by Morris Hawkey coupled with some timely blows at the plate gave the Arrows an 8-7 victory over the U.S. Signallers in Friday night's City Senior Baseball League clash at Renfrew Park. The victory put the Arrows in a third place tie with their victims.

Two hit by pitchers, a pair of stolen bases and a clean cut single over second by Bob Reid supplied the winning margin for the Arrows in the seventh frame.

Fred Lupul's club was four runs down with men on first and third when Hawkey went to the mound with one out in the third to relieve Roy Sampson. Hawkey retired the side with only one run coming in and then went on to hold Signallers to two runs and win. He struck out 10 and passed thirty three in the six and two-thirds innings he worked.

Three chukkers took their turns in the box for the Signallers, Lloyd Riley going the first four and one-third frames, Walter Stopera worked three and one-third stanzas and Helmut Brown finished up.

The Signallers got away to a fine start in the second when they scored four runs on doubles by Nelson and Shissar, singles by Kelly, Culver and Marx and two stolen bases. They added another in the third when a pair of blows to centre field, an error and a fly to Matheson got Nelson around the sacks.

The losers made it six in the fourth while the Arrows were still held scoreless. Hawkey served up a pass to Culver and Marx followed with a nice single through second, sending Culver to third. Marx stole second and then Hackler landed a hard hit ball in centre field to drive in the two runs.

Hawkey settled down after that and shutout Signallers on three hits in the remainder of the game.

An error, a walk, a putout at first and a neat single by Matheson gave the Arrows their first pair of runs in the bottom half of the fourth.

In the fifth, the winners came up with another two markers. Reid walked and went all the way from first on Jones' single to centre field and then another pass and a good hit to left field by Matheson sent Jones across the plate to cut the margin to 7-4.

Haines and Hawkey scored for the Arrows in the sixth on a single to third, a fielder's choice, a stolen base, two outs at first and an error at short. This brought them within one marker of the Signallers and then Lupul and Haines accounted for the tying and winning runs respectively in the seventh.

AT VANCOUVER

VANCOUVER, July 22.—(AP)—Pitcher Nelson Potter, a nine-to-five game winner with the league leading St. Louis Browns, was suspended by President Will Harridge of the American League Friday pending investigation of Friday Cal Hubbard's charges that Potter had violated the rules of pitching by expectorating on the ball.

Hubbard contended the right-hander moistened his fingers and wet the ball in violation of rule 7, section (b), which says a pitcher shall not be allowed to "expectorate" on the ball. The umpire added he did not accuse Potter of throwing the prohibited "spitball," but he said, "I guess that is what he does it for."

last year's titleholder, moved into the semi-final bracket by defeating Willie Lamb, Toronto, 2 and 1.

The victory, coupled with Cincinnati's win over Brooklyn, put Chicago in sixth place and left Brooklyn and Boston tied for seventh.

Bill Nicholson's first inning homer brought in Phil Cavarretta. In the eighth with Cavarretta on and two out, Dom Dallesandro homered to account for the remainder of Chicago's four runs.

The Braves' two tallies came in the sixth when Ab Wright got his fourth homer after Tommy Holmes walked.

Midget and Juvenile

Rossdale and Cardinals Cop City Fastball Titles

Rossdale captured the midget championship and Cardinals won the juvenile crown of the city sandlot fastball organization Friday night by winning in their respective finals at Diamond Park. Members of the championship teams will receive medals donated by "Pop" Miller.

Cardinals scored three runs in the eighth inning of the juvenile playoff to edge out Victoria 5-7 in a thriller highlighted by a home run by Terry Cavanagh with two on to tie the score.

The winning runs were scored when Graham Crags poked out a sharp double over second base with the sacks loaded. Bill Fredrick, Jerry Hennie and Terry Cavanagh brought in the eighth inning markers.

Ed Lamb of Victoria also connected for a round tripper. It came in the fourth with Bill Ingram on base.

Rossdale trounced Seona Centre 22-9 for the midget title in a game featured by a grand slam homer by Ernie McKernan in the fourth frame. Don Granger, Bill Kortes and Ken Kulak were all on base at the time.

Ends Program

Doug Stevenson, currently playing with the Dodgers of the City Baseball League, was one of the main cogs in the city wide sandlot fastball program just completed. Doug ran off 21 playoff games during the past week and has played a big part in the success of the plan that provided fastball for over 1,000 midget and juvenile boys.

Playoff Contests At Kingsway Park

Moose and N.W.S.R. meet tomorrow afternoon in a provincial fastball playoff doubleheader at Kingsway Park starting at 2 o'clock.

No games have been arranged for tonight, but Nonsuch and Enlisted Men may tangle, pending a ruling from Calgary on last Tuesday's game called for disorderly conduct.

On Monday night, the provincial girls' playoffs open. Bomberettes meet Walk-Rite "A" in the opener of the doubleheader in the first game of an intermediate series and Army and Navy Pals play C.P. Airlines in the curtain raiser of a senior playoff.

Entries Close

On July 30th Alberta Meet

Nine days remain to the closing date in competitions of the provincial interscholastic track and field meet which is to be staged at Clarke Stadium on Monday afternoon of August 7, the annual civic holiday. Entries from the different points have been arriving almost daily, as reported by the secretary of the track committee assisting the Edmonton Girls' Athletic Club, who are promoting the meet.

Due to various conditions the number of entries is not expected to set any new record for this annual event, but the quality of competition, judging from reports of various school district meets, will be fully up to any previous year.

Perhaps it is due to the fact that advertising of the meet was issued at an early date this year which has afforded several points to pool efforts and gas allowances and the Peace River country as well as south of Calgary will have good representation.

So far, the local Edmonton entries have not reached any high number and the competition usually looked for between the north and south athletes would indicate results which will give the southern city a lead in the points to be garnered in the events, as between the two.

No specific word has been received as to the Vancouver athletes who were expected for the women's senior events, but as that city is having a big meet on the preceding Saturday, it now seems hardly probable that the hoped for visitors will be able to travel for this date.

Twenty-one points so far have been heard from with one to twelve athletes in their representation. This will doubtless be increased in number.

Result of Alberta's Election To Influence Public Opinion Across Canada Says Premier

continued, and for the wisest and best of all, electors must know what is true and what is not true.

OLD ORDER PAST

"It is generally agreed that the old order of the day before the war are a thing of the past. Few people today would say they want to go back to the days of the 'hungry thirties'."

"A country able to produce everything for the destruction of human life should be able to produce everything needed for a comfortable standard of living."

Mr. Manning said it should not be forgotten that wishful thinking won't change anything. Things will be different only when the people themselves forget animosities and throw themselves behind an all-out effort to attain the proper standard of living that the country is able to give.

The people of Alberta have a right to be proud of the world-wide recognition attained by the Social Credit administration in various fields, the premier said.

He recalled that nine years ago, Alberta launched an all-out offensive against the monopoly of finance.

"I would like to remind all the little critics of the government who say we have pulled our punches that in nine years we have made Alberta known around the world as the spearhead of the offensive for monetary reform," Mr. Manning declared.

LEAD IN SERVICES

In addition, the Social Credit government in Alberta is recognized as the provincial government making the greatest advances in the field of social progress. In public health, social services, and education, Alberta is the leading province in Canada.

Mr. Manning said it did not seem to matter what political party a candidate belonged to in the recent Saskatchewan election, as all promised to introduce Alberta's educational system if elected. Now, speakers are coming into Alberta from Saskatchewan, criticizing the government because it has done nothing since coming into power.

"Do people want this province to maintain its leadership and fight to win freedom from the monopoly of finance, leading to freedom to enjoy the standard of living this country can provide once financial restrictions are removed, or do they want Alberta to go down an alley endorsing state control, hoping there to find financial freedom?" Mr. Manning asked.

MOVEMENT ATTACKED

He said that in 1935, all the then parties went out on their own peddling stories against Social Credit in an effort to stop the people of Alberta from commencing the effort to overthrow finance. "You all know how far they got."

After four and one-half years of ultra-vires decisions and disallowances, the government in 1940 asked for a renewal of mandate.

"The old parties then formed the now rapidly-fading independent party—and had lots of backing and money—and you know how far they got."

We have gone a long way since 1935 and 1940, so far ahead of other provinces that we are recognized leaders, and now it must be decided if we want to keep that leadership, said the premier.

NEW OPPOSITION

"The opposition this time is coming from another quarter. Surely the people can recognize the hidden hand behind all this. Imported speakers are now coming from other places not half as progressive as Alberta, telling us how to do things. That's a most amusing feature of the campaign."

The socialists are asking the people to become instruments of their own destruction, and are trying to give the impression the Social Credit government is turning back.

"I think the people are aware of these tactics," Mr. Manning told listeners. "The very men who are trying to set themselves up as champions of the people are the same men who have obstructed the Social Credit government for the last 10 years."

Opposition speakers say the government is giving away the province's oil and other resources, and yet they know this is not true. "The Social Credit government has never given away oil or mineral resources of this province."

"But if suspicion and doubt can be given to the people, that's the very instrument to give people with which to destroy their own rights."

RACIAL PREJUDICE

The opposition is now trying to sow racial prejudice, trying to infer the Social Credit party is anti-Semitic and linked with the Biot Populaire.

"These men know that is deliberately false. Social Credit is the one movement in which all men, irrespective of race, color, creed, are entitled to equal rights and liberties."

"It is self-evident that if distrust can be sown, and racial prejudices can be stirred up, they can be cleared the real issue. That's an old thing in the political game."

Mr. Manning continued: "We should not lose sight of the fact that the decision made in Alberta today will have a great bearing on the future course of life and government in the whole country."

"If people in this province overthrow and repudiate the cheap political tactics being thrown at them and say, 'We started ten years ago to fight the bottleneck of finance restricting freedom to enjoy our rights; we started ten years ago to improve social services and improve the administration, and we are going to keep on until every last person enjoys the freedom to which he is entitled; and if the people declare this so loudly it will be heard from one end of the country to the other, then you will have taken the greatest step of leadership of any Canadian province since Confederation."

FREEDOM FOR SECURITY

The only reason state socialism has made any progress in Canada is because the people are so fed up with the old order they say 'Give us anything and they are willing to sell their freedom for security,' the premier concluded. He was accorded a rousing ovation by listeners.

Harry D. Carrigan spoke of work of the provincial post-war reconstruction committee, of which he is secretary. He said the body was made up of members of both sides of the Legislature, and represents to a great extent all electors of the province. Sub-committee members were chosen as best qualified by experience or training to carry out committee work.

"Out of the work of the reconstruction committee has come some very tangible results," Mr. Carrigan stated. "Through the Research Council of Alberta, a survey on rural electrification was carried out. This proved power can be distributed economically through the province, and after committee recommendation, a power commission has been set up and is now at work on a power survey."

Some criticism has been levelled at the power commission because it was granted a small appropriation at the last session of the Legislature.

"It would be the utmost folly to give the power commission $250,000 and tell them to buy up everything in sight," Mr. Carrigan said. "The government doesn't do that. It keeps things on a realistic basis."

VETERANS' GROUP ACTIVE

He said the committee recommended that the government set up a veterans' advisory commission. This group was recently started on its work. It is manned by veterans, and is working for veterans.

Mr. Carrigan said the field of housing has been sadly neglected by most governments. The reconstruction committee found the principle of government support of housing schemes is not general. The principle of building houses for cheap rental has not been effected at all.

"The Social Credit government is not interested in building houses for rental, except in emergencies. Our aim is to build homes for home owners."

Some method must be found to see how housebuilders can own their own homes, Mr. Carrigan went on. Today, the stumbling block is the down payment.

In a study of housing, it is generally agreed that any person desiring to buy a home should not pay out more than one-fifth of income, and homes should not cost more than two and one-half times a wage earner's annual income.

"BUYS" THREE HOMES

"If a man pays $40 a month in rent, in 20 years he has paid $9,600, whereas the maximum safe figure for him is $3,000—he has paid for three houses in 20 years," Mr. Carrigan said.

"Housing is a matter that affects all three levels of government, municipal, provincial, and federal. All have necessary interests in it, and all should take an interest in seeing their people are decently housed."

"Once again, Alberta leads the field. It has already instituted a home-building program. People in any given district can put pressure on their local government to participate in the act."

A feature of the housing scheme is mortgage insurance, the speaker said. In the event of death or total disability, permanent title would be granted to the home-buyer.

John B. Gillies answered criticism of M. J. Coldwell, CCF national leader, regarding the $25 a month dividend which the CCF leader had been promised but never implemented.

PROPOSALS REJECTED

"The Social Credit government went in in 1935 and it was natural to think it could do anything it wished. But it was only a provincial government. Its enactments to realize the basic dividend through monetization of the people's credit were turned down, declared ultra vires, disallowed."

"When Mr. Aberhart was discussing the $25 a month dividend, he actually promised that if the Social Credit system were implemented in Alberta, a monthly dividend of at least $25 could be paid."

"Has anyone said the Social Credit government has not tried to implement this plan?" Mr. Gillies asked.

"I'm not saying Mackenzie King deliberately stood in our way, but there was no effort made by the Dominion government to change the law to allow Social Credit legislation that had been passed."

MANY OBSTACLES

"So many obstacles were encountered along the line, Premier Aberhart could not get the machine of Social Credit into operation."

"The blame for the basic dividend never being effected should be laid at the doors of the cynics and scolders. It could possibly have been paid, had they in their thousands supported the Aberhart government and let the Dominion government know Albertans wanted them."

Mr. Gillies said he felt sure

Canadian Nurses in France

The first Canadian women to arrive in France since D-Day were two R.C.A.F. nursing sisters, Winnifred Pitkethly of Ottawa, left, and Molly Mulholland of Georgetown, Ontario. They landed with the main party of an R.C.A.F. Mobile hospital supervised by Wing Commander J. M. Groves of London, Ontario. The above picture, taken just before the field hospital unit crossed to the invasion coast, shows the two Ontario girls with the hospital mascot. After a "wonderful" crossing of the channel the girls pitched in with the rest of the unit to put up tents and unboxed vehicles.

public ownership was not the answer to today's problems. "In ordinary times, there was never a shortage of goods and no one complained of short supply. The only thing not available was the economic ticket—the dollar bill. When these tickets are available, then we will be able to enjoy the kind of life we want."

EARNED REST, NOT DOLE

"We should say, 'You have pioneered and made Alberta what she is today. Should we say, 'Out of charity and pity, we give you a certain pittance'?"

Mr. James said he was a victim of the old soldier settlement board. "The Dominion government in its goodness of heart said get a farm—we'll lend you enough money. Like a chump I took them up on it and spent the next few years of my life piling up rocks and trying to grow crops."

"In the end, my land went back to the soldier settlement board. The struggle some men put up to try and make a success killed them. That is a shameful thing."

"The Dominion government plan in this war is much better but it is still a long way from being just," said Mr. James. "Steps must be taken to see the men get something better."

"In Alberta, the government has set aside huge tracts of land, now being tested by soil surveys. 'We're not going to give men rock piles or swamps. We are out surveying land, to see they get good land.'"

"When the men decide to take up land, they will have three years in which they do not have to pay any taxes or administration costs. At the end of three years, they will pay one-eighth of their crop, if it is more than five bushels per acre. At the end of ten years, they get free title to the land."

POLITICS ARE OUT

Politics have nothing to do with this election, Mr. James told listeners. The issue was one of the most vital importance, and will affect the whole of Canada for coming generations.

"We will have to vote to maintain or bring about a real democracy in Canada, or the slavery of state socialism. They can camouflage it if they like, and draw red herrings about, but that is the issue."

"Socialists don't like the term 'national socialism.' But they don't want socialism in Saskatchewan and not in Ontario. They don't want it in B.C. and not in Alberta. They want socialism all across the country—and that is national socialism."

A. Whiteman was chairman of the Calder meeting, while Dr. Louis Hard acted in the same capacity at North Edmonton.

The first torpedo, the "spar torpedo" of the American Civil War, was a long ram with a bomb on the end of it.

"The 'misérable, insulting means' test on pensions must be done away with," Mr. James declared.

"Old age pensions are not a charity or anything of that description. The toll and sacrifice of

2 Are Injured Result Crashes In City Streets

Donald Erickson, 17-year-old motorcycleist of 48 avenue and 98 street, was in the Royal Alexandra hospital Saturday, suffering bruising and leg lacerations received in a collision with an auto operated by Charles Chardonnes, 2821 104 street, at 104 street and 98 avenue, about 6:30 p.m. Friday.

The accident was the second which occurred Friday and which resulted in a person being admitted to hospital. "Samuel Anderson, Twatnaw, a pedestrian, was in the Royal Alexandra hospital after he was said to have walked into the side of a truck in a lane west of 181 street on 103 avenue, late in the afternoon."

According to police, Chardonnes stated he was driving to the Gateway service station, between 30 and 60 avenues on 104 street, and signalled a left turn. He saw nothing behind him and he proceeded to make the turn. A moment later he heard a crash, stopped the auto, and found a motorcycle lying at the side of the road, with Erickson beside it.

FOLLOWED CAR

Taken to hospital by L. Rogers 10440 63 avenue, Erickson was later interviewed by police. He stated that he was following the car at an estimated 35 miles an hour, and that he turned out to pass it at 50 avenue. The car turned at the same time, he said and he turned with it, before hitting it and getting knocked to the pavement.

Samuel Anderson was admitted to the Royal Alexandra hospital suffering lacerations and bruises to his nose and face, after walking into the side of a truck and being hit by police to have been operated by Charles Meunier, 9853 87 avenue. Anderson apparently did not see the truck which turned into the lane and stopped to allow him to pass. Said to have been looking the other way, he walked into the vehicle.

Monetary Group Decides Quotas For World Fund

By THOMAS HAGENBUCH

BRETTON WOODS, N.H., July 22.—(AP)—An initial capital of $3,000,000,000 for the world bank for reconstruction and development was agreed on yesterday by the United Nations monetary conference, completing the work of the three-week session except for technical details.

In a table of quotas for the various nations, the Soviet Union was given a total of $900,000,000, the amount for which the Russians had stubbornly held out.

QUOTAS ARE SET

The United States quota was set at $3,175,000,000, Great Britain's at $1,300,000,000, Canada's at $325,000,000 (an increase over the fund quota of $25,000,000), Australia's $200,000,000, India's $400,000,000; China's at $600,000,000, and France's at $450,000,000.

In preliminary talks on the bank, it had been the hope of conference leaders that the quotas for the bank and the international monetary fund would be about the same, but Russia and the Latin American republics put up a strong fight for lower bank quotas.

In the final agreement, the Russians got a quota which was $300,000,000 under their fund total and the Latin American countries got reductions.

The United States, on the other hand, accepted an increase of $425,000,000 over its fund quota, while the United Kingdom subscription was unchanged.

Canadian Pacific Pilot Saved Three In Crash of Plane

VANCOUVER, July 22.—(CP)—Larry Salter, Canadian Pacific Airlines pilot, was responsible for the rescue of two men and one woman aboard the Northern Witch, Royal Canadian Air Force transport plane which crashed at a west coast station Tuesday killing six, CPA officials revealed yesterday.

Salter, who was in his own plane at the time of the accident, said he saw the big plane rise into the air, turn over its side and crash. An explosion followed almost immediately and the plane broke in half, Salter said. Landing his own plane, Salter rushed to the rescue of victims hanging from trees near the burning plane.

Appeal Denied In Extradition

VICTORIA, B.C., July 22.—(CP)—Another legal battle to evade extradition to New York City to face 17 charges of grand larceny totaling $275,964, was lost by Ralph M. Wilby, former chief accountant for the William T. Knott Co. Inc., when the British Columbia court of appeal today dismissed two applications by Gordon S. Wismer, K.C., Wilby's counsel, for permission to carry the case back to the Privy Council in London.

Mr. Wilby thereupon notified the court of appeal he intended to make further application to the Privy Council.

Promotes Music

A LREADY preparations are well advanced for next season's musical activities, which give every indication of comprising an unusually extensive, varied and interesting period. The season concluded recently, was eventful, and in some ways momentous. That which lies ahead promises to be at least as interesting, and undoubtedly will turn out to be of far-reaching significance. Arrangements have been completed for the continuation of the Women's Musical Club's Celebrity Series of concert.

G. A. Kavan, organist and choir-master of Robertson United Church and president of the Edmonton branch of the Alberta Music Teachers' Association, who is one of this city's most active workers on behalf of good music.

The Women's Musical Club is arranging regular semi-monthly meetings and programs are being at least tentatively drafted. Numerous other organizations are drawing plans, and pointing toward a busy season. The last year was one of exceptional activity in teaching, with a great many students taking examinations. An indication of the extent to which students are participating in exams was given in the long list of results published in this newspaper last Saturday. And a highly gratifying feature was the large percentage of successful students.

This indicates a healthy condition of music. It shows that there is a genuine interest in progress on the part of the students, and that teachers are turning out well qualified performers. The subject of examinations is one upon which many comments may be made, but apart from all other considerations they do provide a measure, or a standard by which progress may be judged.

Teachers and pupils now are taking well-deserved vacations and will re-assemble in September or October, as the case may be, with renewed vigor and enthusiasm, ready to carry on from where they left off last month. Active as was this last year, the 1944-45 year will be equally active if not more so.

The name of Victor Herbert is one to conjure with in music whether it be in the home, the concert hall, the theatre, the grand opera house, the radio, the symphony auditorium or elsewhere. Herbert's is one of the greatest names in American music, and rightly so, as his musical gifts, technical ability and capacity for work were prodigious. His music will live with undiminished charm for many years. The government of the United States has not been backward in honoring him. His likeness already has appeared on a United States postage stamp.

While his name needs no introduction in foreign lands, the United States government is insuring that it will be kept in an honored spot. A liberty ship named the Victor Herbert recently slid down the ways of an American shipyard, and even now it may be carrying supplies overseas to the gallant men bringing about the downfall of the Axis aggressors. Friends of the great composer presented the captain, and his crew, with two electrical phonographs and several albums of records, and needless to say the records were of Herbert's music.

The junior choir of Norwood United church met in the church parlor a few evenings ago to pay tribute to its director, Myrtle Coote, whose marriage is to take place on Aug. 2. Miss Coote was largely responsible for building up the choir to its present state of efficiency and has been a bulwark in sustaining its high standards. In addition to her choir work, she has given unstintingly of her time and talent in appearing at war services concerts and entertainments and for other community welfare activities. As head of the record department at Heintzman and Company's store she has made a wide circle of friends.

At the choir meeting there was a brief musical program, at the close of which refreshments were served by executive members, Joan Wilson, the president, was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Thornton Grose and Isobel Burton. The choir has adjourned activities until September when practices will be resumed.

A new work by Igor Stravinsky, the Russian musical titan, now resident on the Pacific coast, always attracts interest. This week the New York Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra played his latest composition entitled Four Norwegian Moods, written in 1942. Herein the composer has not used the word "mood" to signify mood or style. He wishes simply to suggest the folklore treatment to create, with this as a basis, a canvas upon which is painted refreshing and unexpected movements. With his own particular talent for tonal balance Stravinsky is said to have welded together in a masterful way, a series of disparate themes. Sparingly orchestrated the work lasts 12 minutes in performance, and unlike some of his earlier works such as Sacre du Printemps and Petruska, it is a masterpiece.

The Toronto Conservatory of Music has awarded the Marion Ferguson Organ Scholarship to Elizabeth Gallimore the former Betty Graham of this city and only daughter of Dr. and Mrs. E. R. Graham of Lussland, Sask. Mrs. Elizabeth Gallimore is the wife of Capt. Charles Wilfred Gallimore of this city, now serving with the 29th Canadian Armored Regiment (South Alberta Regiment). She obtained her licentiate of the Toronto Conservatory of Music with first class honors and is so doing won a gold medal. She is a graduate of the Royal Alexandra Hospital School of Nursing here and for the last two years has been nursing at the Toronto Hospital for Sick Children and studying at the conservatory with Dr. Charles Peaker.

Housing Legislation Expected Next Week

OTTAWA, July 22.—(CP)—Finance Minister Isley said yesterday in the Commons that he realized the urgency of housing legislation and he hoped to have it ready to place before the government next week. Mr. Isley told Gordon Ross (PC—Toronto St. Paul's) that prices board officials were participating in discussions with Toronto authorities in connection with the housing situation there, which Mr. Ross described as "desperate."

Plan Cadet Corps

OTTAWA, July 22.—(CP)—Formation in the post-war of a Royal Canadian Mounted Police cadet corps for young boys is being considered by the justice department. Justice Minister St. Laurent said last night in the Commons: "It would give the boys an interest to keep out of mischief and would give them a desire to contribute to the maintenance of order."

Coast Violinist Gives Recital

Alexander Boytoun, Vancouver violinist and a member of the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra appeared in recital at Education House, 98 street and 106 avenue on Friday night, under the auspices of the Ukrainian Home of Education. A member of the violin section of the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra and conductor of a junior orchestra, Mr. Boytoun played on a violin bearing a Stradivarius label and dated 1724.

Mr. Boytoun was given a cordial reception by a large and appreciative audience. His numbers were chosen from the masterworks of Schubert, Mendelssohn and others.

Plan To Discuss Mrs. Dick Memorial

To consider the question of establishing a memorial to the late Mrs. W. J. Dick, the War services Council of Northern Alberta has convened a meeting of all organizations with which she was connected so that a committee may be formed to operate under their joint sponsorship.

Representatives of these organizations, together with all friends who may care to attend, are invited to meet at the War Services Centre, 10639 Jasper avenue, Monday, July 24, at 8:30 p.m.

The proposal for a memorial most favored up to the present is the establishment of a Muriel Dick Memorial Library, consisting of volumes dealing with subjects in which Mrs. Dick was most keenly interested, such as art, social studies, the theatre, Girl Guide books, and others. The project is to have these volumes carefully selected by a competent committee and not necessarily deposited in one place, but distributed where they would be of most use to the public and to students. Each volume would be identified by a memorial book plate.

Plan to Continue Harvesting Trips

Harvest excursions from Eastern Canada will be continued this year, and it is expected to bring in more than the 3,700 harvesters who flocked to the western harvest fields last year. T. B. Pickersgill, Ottawa, associate assistant director of National Selective Service, stated on his arrival here Saturday.

He will confer with members of the Dominion-provincial farm labor committee on Monday when Alberta's harvest help requirements will be canvassed.

Naturally the larger crop anticipated this year will mean an increased demand for harvest labor. Mr. Pickersgill stated. Every source possible will be tapped to meet this demand, he said. The sources of supply will be discussed at the meeting to be held Monday, when the possibilities of obtaining help from the armed forces in the harvesting of this year's crop will be discussed.

Rigid Enforcement of School Act In North Is Urged by Minister

Need for provincial government and church collaboration and rigid enforcement of the School Act, owing to the rapidly increasing half-breed population arising from the illiterate population in the north, was stressed by the Rev. Norman Burgomaster, B.A., Anglican Church minister at Fort Chipewyan, who is in the city on a business trip; the first time he has been out of the north country in the last four years.

The Indian problem in the north is decreasing but the half-breed problem is increasing owing to the need of a residential school where the half-breed can be taken out of home surroundings, the minister said.

DANGEROUS LIE

One of the most dangerous lies told of the north is that education ruins the trappers. The only trapper who makes money in the north is the educated one, according to Mr. Burgomaster. Community conditions regarded in the light of the volume of business coming from such places is disturbing to a civilized country.

All northern schools should be under careful government inspection but it must be remembered that the school system of Alberta is in many ways anachronistic for these more primitive areas, he said.

In all probability after the war mining activities will reopen throughout the north. Commercial fisheries will become a major industry. The beauties of the northland have become more publicized and there will no doubt be a great tourist traffic.

The Bishop of Athabasca, the Rt. Rev. A. H. Sovereign says "It is the awakening of the north," Mr. Burgomaster stated.

He said there is a great deal of room in this section of Canada for philanthropic and Christian enterprise. The changes needed to give an adequate educational reform more in keeping with Canadian principles are too great for the present financial resources of the church, he stated.

ADOPTED BY I.O.E.

The Sir Wilfrid Laurier Chapter, I.O.E., Edmonton, adopted St. Paul's Anglican Mission school at Fort Chipewyan, which has a population of 500 Scottish Cree. The Chapter has provided a good dormitory, a gymnasium, Christmas treats, augmented the school library.

rare, provided kindergarten equipment, and at present are sending instruments for a life and drum band.

Mr. Burgomaster's parish extends from Fort Chipewyan to Aklavik and from Fort Chipewyan as far as one can reach because there is only one Anglican minister at present active in the territory.

The minister teaches school, is responsible for medical and veterinary treatment—there is no doctor there—he is general amaniensis owing to the fact that more than half the population is illiterate.

A touch of human interest is shown in the fact that four high school students graduated last year and the science room was a kitchen and all apparatus was improvised. Travelling is by dog team or by water.

TROOPS IN AREA

There are three army detachments in the area and the rector and his wife have been hosts to hundreds of American soldiers in the past two years.

The fort itself is more than 200 years old. It is the traditional trading post for the two tribes of Indians, Crees and Chipewyans, and has had a long history in the development of the north. It was the starting off point for Mackenzie and Franklin and from there Franklin took his last fatal voyage.

The church at Fort Chipewyan is a noble structure with a very high ceiling. It is 65 years old and built entirely with white sawn lumber. Even the nails are hand-cut. It is really one of the sights of the north, Mr. Burgomaster said.

Churchgoers in the fort are most consistent supporters and attenders. The proportionate contributions would put a white man to shame, Mr. Burgomaster said.

The church enters very deeply into their every day lives at the fort. The departments in which the church ministers to its people covers the whole gamut of their existence, he stated.

Canada-Chile Post-War Era Trade Studied

Investigating the possibilities of post-war trade between Canada and Chile and making a fact finding tour of western Canada, Dr. Eduardo Grove, Chilean ambassador, arrived in Edmonton Saturday. He is accompanied by Mrs. Grove and son George.

Saturday morning he made courtesy calls on His Honor Lt.-Gov. J. C. Bowen, Premier Ernest Manning and Mayor John W. Fry. The Grove family will leave Saturday evening for Saskatoon.

Dr. Grove said that the tremendous production possibilities developed in Canada under the impetus of war must find an outlet in the post-war period and it is natural that the South American markets would attract Canadian exporters.

Chile will need trucks, agricultural implements, newspaper, pulp wood, asbestos, nickel and many other commodities produced in the Dominion, Dr. Grove said.

Chile manufactures excellent table wines, and produces all the ranges of fruits commonly used in Canada. Dr. Grove stated, and explained that Chile would be a natural market for this fruit as the seasons are opposite, and the importation of the citrus fruits, apples, plums, peaches and pears would not interfere with the Canadian domestic market. He said that onions, rice and other Chilean agricultural products could be exported to Canada.

SINCERE ADMIRATION

He said there was a very sincere admiration for Canada throughout South America, and Chile was looking to Canada for sincere friendship in the post-war period.

The visit of Hon. James A. MacKinnon, minister of trade and commerce, cemented further the excellent relations between the countries of South America, and Canada, he said. Mr. MacKinnon had been "extremely helpful" to him since his appointment and Chilean representative to Canada in September, 1942.

Chile will probably send engineers to Canada in the post war to study hydro-electric development, forestry and fishing, Dr. Grove said, and it is anticipated that these missions will create further good will between the countries.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION:

Is the report of internal trouble in Germany the payoff and near end of the war, or is it Nazi propaganda?

THE ANSWERS:

HARRY TALON, clerk: I guess the end is near at hand. The fact that the German military men want to get rid of Hitler and made this desperate attempt on his life would indicate they are trying to pull a few chestnuts of their own out of the fire. I should not be surprised to see a general military revolt.

WILLIAM MULDOON, miner: It is probable that the stories of disaffection in Germany are propaganda. The Gestapo is too strong and too ruthless to permit any general revolt of the people.

HARRY STOFFER, clerk: I have been looking for a German breakup this fall and this would appear to be the first sign of internal trouble. I hope it is the start of a general revolt, and also hope that no patched up peace will be accorded the Nazis.

DUMOTHY DIX SAYS—

Month's Stay the Limit Two Weeks is Better

Better to Avoid Wearing Out Welcome; Writer Asks
Why Don't Guests Make Visits Like
Angels, Few and Short

DEAR MISS DIX: Is there any way to get rid of a guest who is staying here without making him feel like a second-class citizen? Mine came for a two month's visit and I have done my best to make it pleasant for her, but she has already stayed five months and is planning for two months more and I am on the verge of nervous prostration.

I like her, but five months of even my own mother would be too much. Why, oh why, don't guests make their visits like angels, few and short and long between.

ANSWER: I wish I could help you, but I am not a doctor. I am a writer and I can only suggest that you try to make the most of the time you have. If you can't stand the guest, then you must try to make the most of the time you have. If you can't stand the guest, then you must try to make the most of the time you have.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl just graduated from high school and I am looking forward to the future. I wonder if there is any disgrace in being an old maid. Naturally I would like to marry, have a home of my own, a husband and children, but I want a career more than I do them. And I feel that I could devote more time to my career than to a husband and children.

ANSWER: How can you ask such a foolish question as whether it is a disgrace to be an old maid? You know little of history and less of modern times if you are not aware that many of the most famous and honored women the world has ever had have been old maids. Susan B. Anthony, Florence Nightingale, Emma Willard, dozens of famous actresses and writers and doctors and business women whom I could name, have all been spinners. And in these days, whether a woman marries or not calls for no more comment than whether a man does. It is a matter of her own choice.

McCoy Health Service

The old adage that the army fights on its stomach is perhaps more true today than when it was said in Napoleon's time. The hundreds of thousands of our boys in camps at this time are depending on the best plain, wholesome, well rounded and well balanced meals designed to keep their physical fitness at a maximum. The soldiers' food should contain all the necessary vitamins and mineral salts and proteins necessary for maintaining health, and for withstanding the rigors of a soldier's life.

It has always been my opinion that a man who indulges too freely in rich and fatty foods, because of the fact that at the most the type of work he does can do for any great physical exertion. However, with the soldiers it is a different matter. He is a man who is called upon to exert his physical capacities to the utmost and the energy food which he may consume are really burnt up and utilized by the organism.

I have no hesitation in saying that the United States Army and Navy is the best fed in the world, and I have questioned many soldiers and sailors and they have no complaint to make regarding either the quantity or the quality of food.

As I stated before, a large quantity of food need not necessarily furnish the body with the material necessary to fuel it. What is needed is a variety and a proper balance. Of course during war conditions supplies may be cut off and it may be impossible to obtain the foods necessary to keep the soldiers fit. Supply lines may be cut and the diet may consist of a monotonous fare of meat and canned goods. It is interesting to note that the German paratroopers arriving on the island of Crete were found to have on their persons various foodstuffs which were used to keep them going.

The soldiers' diet then should consist of an adequate amount of protein, carbohydrates, fats, vitamins and minerals, and it should be varied. Together with a substantial amount of the green, fresh vegetables, both in the cooked and the raw form.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address: McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Debunker

HAL, THE GANG'S ALL HERE IS NOT AN AMERICAN TUNE

Because the popular tune "Hal, the Gang's All Here" is so popular in America today, most people erroneously believe that it is an American tune. The truth is that it is an English song. It was written by Sir Arthur Sullivan, and was part of the light opera "The Pirates of Penzance". The words have been changed somewhat, but the tune is the same. The man who wrote "Hal, the Gang's All Here" also wrote "Oswald Christian Soldiers" and "The Lost Chord".

Kingfishers eat other foods besides fish. Mice and innumerable insects make up a good part of their fare.

Points for Parents

This Mother: "Here, Son, is your book. You may look at it while your Grandmother is on the table and she can show it to you."

Not This Mother: "Leave that book alone. I've already started disciplining Jimmie. When he doesn't mind, I scold his legs."

Discipline and punishment are not synonymous. Discipline is teaching which controls, while punishment is more often retribution than teaching.

Personal Health Service

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.
THE DOCTOR'S DUTY

"Cancer is the most dreaded word in the language. Arthritis, a ruthless word, cripples as many aged as the disease itself." An editorial quote these statements from a book on geriatrics (old age and its diseases) and says much to them.

Several months ago I paid my respects to that book on arthritis and to two or three recent books on the same subject. In this column, I had examined them in the hope of finding something fresh, something new, when they were the first textbooks of geriatrics, which has not yet, though it may become a field of practice for specialists, provided it can persuade the pediatricians to release a few patients from their supervisory ultra patients get along past thirty or forty years of age.

The fight against cancer cannot bring any great victory as long as there are many people with the attitude of the writer of that editorial. What less dreaded term can be should a honest doctor use when confronted with signs or symptoms which may possibly spell cancer? The head-in-the-sand position the editorial writer approves may be all right from his point of view. It would be criminal for a doctor in such circumstances to tell the patient of the patient's family at the earliest possible moment that it is a cancerous tumor. It is cancer but he cannot be sure as yet, or (2) that the patient should have the benefit of the opinion of another doctor, or (3) it is cancer in his opinion and the patient should have the proper treatment immediately, whether it be X-ray, radium or radical surgery or a combination of these methods. There is no fair alternative course a doctor can follow.

The remarks about the terms "arthritis" and "arterio-sclerosis" in the queer editorial essay suggest that perhaps the writer of the essay may be a wiseacre who has not only caught up with medical practitioners and their "ills and poisons" but has advanced far ahead and embraced a Yankee cult that simply exaggerates disease, pain, injury and other mortal obsessions from human consciousness.

Fishbein gave a beautiful example of counting a hand out in today's hand. He trumped the second spade lead, then led the nine of hearts. When West played the king Fishbein let him hold it. West's bidding marked him with six diamonds and five spades.

Therefore Fishbein knew that the heart must be a singleton and had to make his play to protect against "three queens to the jack in the East hand. Another spade was returned, South trumped and trumped a diamond. Then the nine of clubs was led. East had doubled, when practically marked him with four clubs to the jack. Fishbein took the finesse, picked up the queen, then led a heart to dummy, and all the hearts were good.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDERD

It must be expected that as the baby grows his sleeping, as well as his eating habits, will change. At first he sleeps almost all of the time, then he naturally comes right after a feeding and lying almost up to the next one. The longest wakeful periods are usually during the both time and late in the afternoon. Eventually these nap periods will be two a day, one right after the bath, the other after the 2 p.m. meal.

By the time baby is a year old there may be the first noticeable shift in habits. Probably at this time he is on a three-meal schedule. If he still wants to sleep at ten in the morning and two in the afternoon, he should have that privilege, but quite often his mother finds that he will not. When this is true then it is better to keep him up all morning and put him down for a nap right after the mid-day meal. This may be at 1:30 to 12:30, probably no later, and then the nap will last for an hour or two or three.

Even this pattern tends to change. The mother may find at or near the age of two years that the child no longer seems to want to nap at all. This differs so greatly with children that it is hard to make any rules about it.

The week, undernourished, anemic child not only needs this rest the most but is most apt to take it. This is the type of child who curls after sleep willingly in the afternoon up to the third or fourth year.

The young husky, who the moment he or she opens his eyes is ready for business and activity, is the one who balks at napping. Even this child can be submissive to the idea of a nice rest period. If this period is not continued too long and the mother is satisfied if the child stays in his room, this rest can become a stabilizing and be an anticipated ceremony.

It is desirable to continue the afternoon nap or rest so long as the child is not in school. Once school begins it is a habit which has to be ended.

The young child, two or three years old, who gets only one rest period and no nap each day should have an early bedtime. Seven or seven-thirty is not too early, even though it is light outdoors. Children wear out and all one gets for a later bedtime is disturbance. Crying, quarrelling, whining—such conduct is a trademark of the tired child.

Our leaflet, "Sleeping Habits," goes into the problem in greater detail. It may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Myrtle Meyer Elder in care of this newspaper.

Adults Carry Dreaded News

The dread "casualty message" are given personal attention by the telegraph company and every effort is made to deliver them as humanely as possible, according to city telegraph officials.

The sight of a young boy or girl in telegraph company uniform ringing the front-door bell, need not bring the fear of the dreaded message to every wife or mother of a man serving overseas. Instruction from the Dominion Government, which realizes the shock that comes to every family under such circumstances, has the companies see that these messages are not entrusted to children.

Telegrams from the war department are addressed to the wife or mother, and as soon as they come through, the company's office staff try to locate the husband or members of the family.

CONTACT RELATIVES

A man is contacted at his place of business, or if the woman is a widow, every avenue is explored, neighbors, sons, daughters, relatives or the parish priest, have been called in to help break the sad news.

A message is sometimes trusted to one of the senior messengers who is instructed to announce that he has bad news and to stay in the house until someone has been brought in to stay with the bereaved.

The message is delivered sometimes personally by an adult member of the office staff, even by the officials themselves. They are never

ICE CREAM IN ITALY

delivered late at night, and unless absolutely unavoidable, never to a woman alone in her house.

An older woman employee of a local telegraph office, herself a mother of a lieutenant serving overseas, has delivered many such messages. She has the highest praise for the bravery of the women she has called on.

It is not a pleasant task, she says, but she always feels such a satisfaction when she knows that she has been able to comfort someone. She finds that most women, after the first shock of the news, seem to like to talk about the loved one they have lost. A cup of tea, a little quiet chat seems to help them collect their nerves, she says.

She will never forget one woman, a widow who was found to be living alone. No other members of her family could be found in the city, so the telegraph woman went personally to deliver the message on Christmas Day. When she arrived at the home she found the old lady's sons and daughters and their families had gathered from various country points for a family reunion dinner.

DECIDED TO WAIT

She broke the news to the mother alone, whereupon the old lady squared her shoulders and said: "The family is just ready to sit down to dinner. I do not want to spoil their good time, so I'll wait till afterwards before I tell them."

In one telegraph company office alone at least a dozen of the members of the staff have suffered the loss of a brother or son, and no effort is too great to try to carry life news to other people in the kindest way.

Women's clubs in the city have offered to help the companies deliver casualty messages. One official stated that there has been no need to call on these groups yet.

LIFE'S LIKE THAT

"You're first!" said BROWN-haired Teddy. So Susie May took a good aim with her RED, BLUE and YELLOW croquet mallet, sending her big BLUE, RED and YELLOW ball flying through one of the YELLOW wickets.

"Another turn!" cried Teddy, excitedly holding his own RED, GREEN and PURPLE mallet tightly in his two hands, his big PURPLE, GREEN and RED ball by the starting stake.

"There," said YELLOW-haired Susie May, "now it's your turn, Teddy, you at the big YELLOW, RED, BLUE and PURPLE stake. Don't you then follow my ball over the GREEN grass?"

"That's the way," Teddy agreed, and swung his mallet 'til it almost struck one of the bright YELLOW dandelions that were sprinkled like little stars all over the lawn.

"Mother, let me wear this ORCHID-color frock. ORCHID is PURPLE, isn't it?"

"Not exactly," Teddy replied wisely. "It is a light PURPLE with a little bit of ROSE in it."

"Rose is RED, isn't it?" asked YELLOW-haired Susie May.

"Yes, roses are RED and so are—"

"Are the apples on the trees over there and above us?"

"Ha, ha! and our chimney and the swing chair are RED, too!"

"And the picture on the YELLOW lantern in your BROWN summer house is red, too."

"And my necktie, pocket, star and emblem on my BLUE suit," Teddy put in.

"Oh, so much RED, isn't there?" said YELLOW-haired Susie May.

"Yep! your cheeks are PINK and so are mine," said BROWN-haired Teddy, explaining, "PINK is a light shade of RED."

"Have you noticed the old GRAY BROWN (use BLACK very thin and add BROWN) apple tree trunk?" asked Susie May. "Sometimes he really seems to smile at us."

"I'm sure he does," said Teddy. "I should think he'd get awfully tired standing there by the GREEN gate with nobody to talk to but the GREEN box hedge with BROWN roots."

"Oh, my!" said Susie May, "what do you think he thinks of my YELLOW hair and your BROWN hair and our YELLOW shoes?"

"Oh, he just thinks they are like the YELLOW ropes on our swing or the GREEN frame. You see, he never learned better."

"Oh, he can talk to the BLUE sky and his GREEN leaves can whisper over to the other BROWN tree and, of course, its GREEN leaves answer," explained Susie May.

"Perhaps he talks to the YELLOW clapboard house, too, and thinks its GREEN shutters are leaves and its BROWN roof and GRAY (use BLACK lightly) rain pipe are roots."

"Well, he smiles, anyway," said Susie May, "and I like him."

The border can be painted RED and the lettering BLUE.

To Talk Plan For Memorial

The War Services Council of Northern Alberta has called a meeting of all organizations with which the late Mrs. W. J. Dick was connected so that a committee may be formed to operate under their joint sponsorship to consider the question of establishing a memorial to her.

Members of these organizations together with all friends who may care to attend, are invited to meet at the War Services Centre, 1603 Jasper avenue, Monday, July 24, at 8:30 p.m.

A proposal is a Muriel Dick Memorial Library, consisting of volumes dealing with subjects in which Mrs. Dick was interested, such as art, social studies, the theatre, Girl Guides. A committee will select the volumes and they will not be deposited in one place but distributed to students and the public. Volumes would be identified by a memorial book plate.

Penicillin From Canadian Plants Plays Vital Role Healing War Wounds

Production of New Drug is Stepped up by Modern Methods of Manufacture

MINISTER REVEALS OUR PRODUCTION NOW ON COMMERCIAL SCALE

Following more than six months of production in small pilot plants and experimental laboratories to meet urgent military requirements, penicillin is now being produced on a commercial scale in three modern Canadian plants, it is announced by the Department of Munitions and Supply. While total Canadian production at present is taken by the Department and earmarked for use by the armed forces, some quantities of the drug, imported by the Government from the United States, are now available for limited civilian use.

The imported penicillin will be divided among the larger hospitals on the basis of the number of beds, and each hospital is now being advised as to its July quota. Hospitals with 25 beds or less will obtain needed supplies through the Chemicals Control of the Department of Munitions and Supply. All general hospitals will receive a circular prepared by a Medical Advisory Committee, which is advising the Government on all matters regarding the distribution of the drug. This circular will detail the uses permitted, the method of administration and the dosage.

Two Government Plants
Canada is now obtaining penicillin from three Canadian sources and by importation from the United States. Two of the sources are Government plants operated for the Department of Munitions and Supply, one a new modern unit on the outskirts of Montreal, operated by the Montreal pharmaceutical firm of Ayerst, McKenna and Harrison, and the other a plant in Toronto, operated by Connaught Laboratories. The third plant, privately owned, has been brought into production by Merck and Company, Montreal.

The story of penicillin in Canada has behind it a record of painstaking research, organization, and experiment. Early in 1942 research in the production of the drug, a healing agent derived from mould and accidentally discovered in London by Sir Alexander Fleming, was undertaken at the Banting Institute under the direction of Dr. Philip Greey with the assistance of Dr. Alice Gray. The penicillin thus produced was devoted to clinical research carried out in co-operation with the armed services.

The promising results warranted a marked increase in the scale of operations and the Department arranged for the setting up of pilot plants at Montreal and Toronto. Production in these temporary units added further to the knowledge of production methods. Last summer the property occupied some years ago by Knox College in Toronto was rehabilitated and through the Government, the necessary equipment was purchased and installed and Connaught Laboratories was asked to forward production as quickly as possible.

Meanwhile a similar project was under way in Montreal, where, through the agency of Ayerst, McKenna and Harrison a temporary plant was established in Bonsecours Hall on the Montreal waterfront. From this plant came the first Canadian penicillin for use by the armed forces. This plant is still in operation but its output of the "miracle drug" is being supplemented by production from the new plant on the outskirts of the city. This new plant will be officially opened this summer.

Although figures on the production on this continent have been referred to in astronomical numbers, such figures are likely to cause confusion among laymen. Dosage for the average case may run anywhere from 60,000 to 1,000,000 Oxford units. Reduced to bulk measurement however, these figures become more credible. Because of extreme potency, unit figures do not reveal the actual bulk of the drug. One billion units is equal to about one pound of the pure drug.

Drug Derives From Mould

Penicillin in Canadian Government plants is produced by surface culture, large open-neck bottles, similar to the familiar milk bottle, are partially filled with culture medium, plugged with cotton and stacked on racks which are rolled into large retorts for sterilization. In the next step the bottles are inoculated with spores of the mould strain. In this regard, it is of interest that the most productive mould strain yet used to yield penicillin was discovered on an over-ripe cantaloupe.

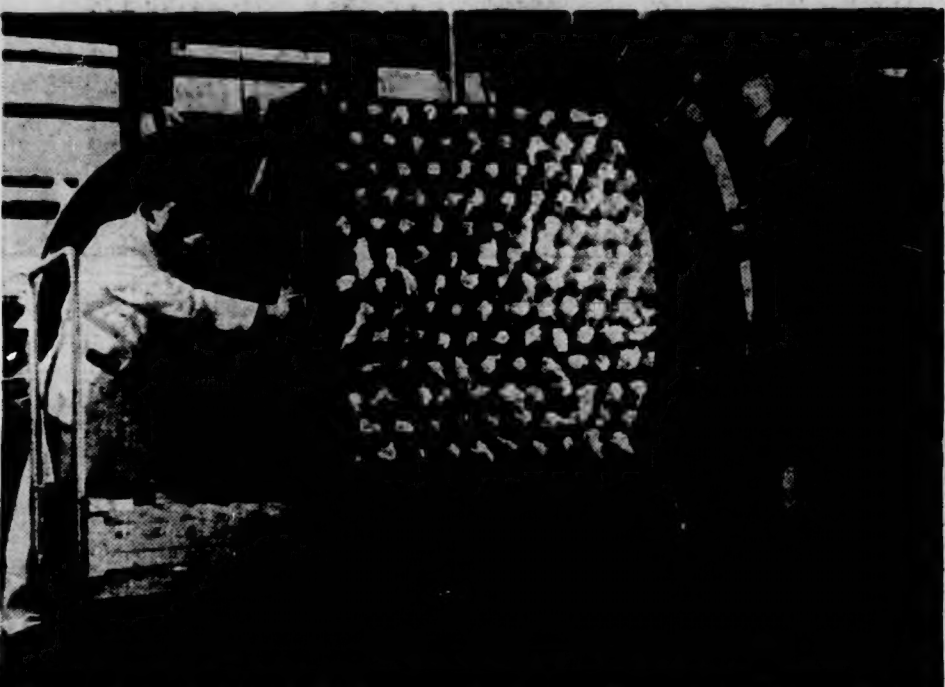

Following inoculation, the bottles are stored in temperature-controlled incubators where they remain while the mould grows in a mat on the surface of the culture. At the end of the incubation period the penicillin is harvested; the fluid is drained off from the bottles and rapidly chilled before being subjected to a chemical process for the extraction and purification of the penicillin it contains.

Through a series of processes the penicillin is reduced to a yellowish powder which is placed in individual ampoules. These ampoules, after tests for sterility and potency have been made, are ready for use by the physician.

Already in Canada small amounts of the drug have been taken on "Mercy Flights" to aid civilian cases where the infection would respond to no other treatment. In the main, however, the drug has been used and will continue to be used primarily for the benefit of Canada's fighting men.

Penicillin is derived from mould which grows in corn-base broth. Milk-bottling machine is used to partly fill bottles. In Toronto, Crown plant, Mrs. Hilda Martin inserts cotton plug into bottles. Plugs prevent contamination of broth.

After filling and corking, bottles are racked and rolled into steriliser or autoclave, which operates on same principle as steam pressure cooker used in home canning. Chemist Paul Morozovitch pushes rack into position in sterilizer.

Following sterilization, bottles of corn-base broth are rolled on special wheeled racks into the "sterile area." There, where the air is filtered and freed of germs by ultra-violet lamps, penicillin culture is added to broth by workers wearing hospital gowns, masks and rubber gloves, as Cecile Rouleau here.

Esther Fox checks date on a batch of broths in one of culture rooms where culture incubates, frees the drug from mould into broth. Process lasts ten days.

S. S. Worthen, chemist with the government-owned plant in Montreal, supervises harvesting of penicillin mould, an operation which is entirely automatic. The mould and broth are separated and penicillin in broth enters chemical stages.

Finishing and stabilizing penicillin extract is last chemical stage before penicillin is filtered for bottling. Bruce Wallace adds amberlite solution.

In final operation Marjorie Joyner filters penicillin to remove impurities, clarify and sterilize the drug in its sodium salt solution ready now for bottling.

Filling of penicillin into vials for final drying stage takes place under rigidly sterile conditions. Vial is 20 cc in size but amount depends on potency.

A tiny vial of penicillin that may save the life of a Canadian soldier. The drug has proven its worth in treatment of both wound and burn infections but scientists are chary about making too-sweeping claim for miracle properties.

For a Family of Four

A charming one and a half story home structure in simple, clean-cut Cape Cod Cottage architectural design. Adequate for the living needs of a family of four, it features a large living room, and two bedrooms with two windows each. Dining space in the kitchen, a modest vestibule and columned porch make it seem even more generously proportioned than it is.

There's Lots of Room, Despite Budget Limit on Size of House

Good planning and design do not raise house costs; more often they produce savings. This compactly planned small house of conventional design is for a family which needs room but whose budget limits the size of the house. This house is simple of line and nicely massed in its proportions; at the same time it is modern and genuinely functional. Little space is given to halls, the closets are ample, the kitchen is adequate, and the important utility room is of exceptional size. The front door treatment is notable for its simplicity.

If this suits you, show it to your local architect or designer.

Late Sown Flower Seed Grows Fast

If June has come with no flower seeds sown, there is still time to have flowers in your Victory garden. Suppose you demanded a combination of flowers which would germinate in five days (in warm weather) and flower in 30 to 40. Here are some you might get: Zinnias, ageratum, alyssum, candytuft, centaureas, clarkia, cynoglossum, annual sunflowers, morning glories, annual pinks, leptosyne, linaria, marigolds, poppies.

ten days. But it would be interesting to see what sort of garden

Some new marigolds have flowers like a chrysanthemum.

Window Glass To Be Problem Post-War Era

The next time you look out your window, stop and think a moment that the pane of glass through which you are looking and which you accept as an every-day convenience is a scarcity and a non-existent necessity to millions and millions of people whose homes and businesses have been destroyed in this war. Indeed experts feel that window glass is going to be one of the world's scarcest commodities.

A big bomb of the modern block-buster type causes breakage in unprotected window glass in an area a tremendous distance from the point of its actual explosion. Due to the terrific Allied bombardment of the European continent and the retaliatory bombing sorties on England, there will be an enormous amount of broken window glass which will have to be replaced after the war.

In Belgium and in France—whose factories in pre-war days supplied a large part of the world's export glass—most of the valuable and complicated machinery needed for the manufacture of glass will have to be replaced and conservative estimates forecast that it will take at least four years for these factories to get back into production; therefore, it can be readily seen that it is going to be up to the Allies to supply the window glass for the post-war reconstruction requirements of the world.

DIFFICULT TASK

England, the United States and Canada are practically the only window glass producing countries in the world today and the plants in these three countries are going to have a difficult task taking care of the fact that people are going to be more than ever glass-minded after this war. Glass wall and glass kitchens which are being forecast in post-war new home designing are going to add to the tremendous shortage.

For these reasons the window glass manufacturers of England and Canada expect to be called upon to produce window glass to their utmost in the post-war period because it will take several years for any new plants that may be built to get into full time production.

Plant tall growing vegetables at one end of the garden and not next to smaller ones that would be shaded too much.

Prune Tomatoes to Save Space in Small Gardens

For the Room They Take, Tomatoes Grown on a Fence or Tied to Stakes Give a Heavier Yield.

In Victory gardens totalling less than 1,500 square feet in area, tomatoes should be staked, or trained to a fence.

If your garden lacks a fence, stakes should be prepared with care in advance of setting the plants. Tomato stakes must be sturdy, at least 1 by 2 inch material, five or six feet long, and pointed at the bottom so they can be driven a foot into the ground.

Single stakes can be used, but they are tiny, until the plant approaches the top of the stake. Then pruning can be stopped.

Tomato plants must be carefully tied to the stake, as they are not naturally climbers and have no tentacles. Raffia, or heavy cord which will not cut the stem, should be used, and tied with a loose loop around the stem.

While there are other methods of staking tomatoes, which do not require heavy pruning, they also take more space, and this is the chief purpose of staking plants in small gardens. A pruned plant will not produce as large a crop as one which is allowed to sprawl on the ground; but thirty-six staked and pruned plants can be grown in a 30 foot row, with other crops close by, and this method will produce a much greater yield for the space occupied than could be harvested from the same space growing unpruned plants. If your tomatoes are not to be pruned and staked, it will save some space to grow small-vine, or determinate varieties, which stop growing after the stems are about two feet long.

Soak beet seeds overnight before planting, if the garden soil is dry.

NEW YORK, July 22.—(AP)—The stock market suffered another stumble today when an early half-hearted recovery effort failed to attract a worthwhile following and fresh selling broke out in virtually all groups. Transfers ran to around 700,000 shares for the two hours.
